INTRODUCTION FROM THE NOMINATIONS COMMITTEE

At the 38th World Conference in July 2023, Full Member Organisations will elect six new members of the World Board. On behalf of the Nominations Committee, I am delighted to present the sixteen candidates for the World Board 2023-2029.

Being able to recognise when and how we have practised leadership is key to being more conscious about who we are as leaders. For each of the ten WAGGGS leadership outcomes, candidates were invited to share an example of when they felt they achieved the outcome. To help Member Organisations get to know the candidates better these examples have been shared on the following pages, alongside each candidate’s personal statement, skills and experience. As well as the recommendation from their Member Organisation (MO), all candidates who are standing named referees who provided professional references, and had a conversation with members of the Nominations Committee in order for us to better prepare this booklet.

As you peruse the profiles of the sixteen candidates, we encourage you to think about who you feel has the vision, skills and dedication to serve our Movement at the global governance level for the next six years. We value greatly your active partnership and careful judgment in identifying the most talented, versatile and committed individuals to join the WAGGGS Global Team at the World Board level. As a Movement that is strongly committed to inclusion, and promoting young women’s participation in our governance and decision-making at all levels, Member Organisations are reminded that, as far as is practicable, at least two of the elected World Board members should be under the age of 30 at the time of election.

It is very important that World Board members do not hold significant posts in their Member Organisation during their term of office, both to ensure that there is no conflict of interest, and that they are able to devote the time required to their Board role. Any candidates currently holding a significant position in their Member Organisation, have therefore been asked to relinquish this role within six months if they are elected to the World Board.

There will be opportunities before and during the World Conference for Member Organisations to hear from and meet candidates. These candidates are talented women, with even more skills than those listed here in view of our space constraints. Do take the opportunity to talk with them, so that you have the information you need to make the best choice for WAGGGS.

Yours in guiding and scouting,

Grace-Anne Crichlow
Chair, Nominations Committee

Personal Statement
Why would you like to become a member of the World Board, and how do you feel you can contribute to the work of WAGGGS?

I would like to come forward to be an active member; this is due to my fondness for the Girl Guiding Movement, and my interest in all that is new in volunteering in the Movement, such as events, camps, principles and values that can be acquired through interaction with members of the Movement locally and globally. The fact that this role will represent the Girl Guides of Bahrain (GGB) has a special reflection and distinguished impact being a source of pride for representing Bahrain on a global level.

I also want to be nominated for this role in order to acquire skills, exchange new experiences, and develop my capabilities as a leader and a trainer in GGB, as this will add to me a lot of girl-guiding assets by witnessing the implementation and coordination of programmes through committees and by members from different countries on the global level.

I see my candidacy as an opportunity to provide my service to WAGGGS by contributing to the development of a dynamic and continuous action plan that seeks to change the Movement for the better, by realizing the needs of the movement, identifying opportunities and challenges, and identifying available solutions to solve problems to strive and reach a better level in all social and organizational aspects.

I would also like to be an effective element in WAGGGS in participating in coordinating programmes and curricula for qualifying new members, including team leaders, heads of associations, commissioners and their assistants and developing guidelines and policies to foster support, training, follow-up, performance evaluation and feedback that positively affect the development process.
Skills and experience

I enjoy a positive social personality through which I can easily acquire social relations without obstacles.

I’m open and informed of most girl guiding and scouting activities by following the social media accounts of the guides and scouts teams in the Arab Region and internationally. I love to interact and correspond with them and meet them if possible in Bahrain. I enjoy many scouting skills, including sports, and delivering theoretical and practical training courses at all levels of Girl Guiding, as well as at the level of leaders. I have the ability to manage girl guiding troops and push them to excellence and to obtain awards and shields during camps, and in 2014 obtained the Minister of Education Cup for the distinguished troop. I received 3 Girl Guiding medals: The Creative Leader Medal, The Outstanding Leader Medal, and the Dedication Medal, in addition to obtaining the Outstanding Leader award for the second time in 2020.

As for my academic experience, I hold a master’s degree with distinction in Human Resources Management in 2021, and I aspire to continue my studies and obtain a PhD.

I love sports, and I aspire to professionalism in mountain bikes, road bikes, as well as running. I twice won second place in mountain bike races in 2021, and first place in the mountain bike race in 2022. I also participated in many running races, the most important and recent of which was the 21 Kilometre 2021 Half Marathon. I won second place in the half marathon in 2022, and the 16 Kilometre 2021 Cross-Island Race. I participated in the February full marathon in 2021 as part of a team, and I also got third place in the Ramadan duathlon race in 2022 I participated in the Al-Areen National Running Race and won first place in my age group, and in the 10 km Optica Race in 2021 where I finished third in my age group, and third in the women’s race in 2022. I participated in many running races, triathlons and duathlons in Bahrain, Saudi Arabia and Kuwait.

I love working in a team, gaining and sharing experiences, trying to solve problems, overcoming any difficulties, whatever they may be, and going through new experiences.
Taking time for myself to derive my energy by practising one of my favourite hobbies, which is reading with a warm drink before bedtime.

Direct listening to points of view without any comments in periodic business meetings that require expressing opinions, and solving various problems; in order to benefit from previous experiences and expertise.

A request was received at work regarding a purchasing process without referring to the direct manager. As a result, I faced a major problem, the most important of which was the dissatisfaction of my direct manager and the confusion of confidence in the process of delegating work. I learned the necessity of consultation and discussing vague matters.

In the course of the master’s programme and in one of the subjects, we were assigned to form work teams to present an integrated project on entrepreneurship. My team consisted of 7 students, and tasks had to be distributed to suit each person’s abilities and skills. Some of the students were suspicious of the abilities of 2 team members with low academic level, I assigned the task of making a short video explaining the project in an integrated manner to these 2 students, using the simple means available, i.e. smart phones. Praise be to God, the work of the team was distinguished, as each student in the team was assigned the work he/she enjoys and excels at and is commensurate with his/her abilities.

In studying the master’s program, I encountered difficulty with the statistics programme. I watched a series that teaches the SPSS programme in detail for two weeks until I master the programme and applied what I learned to the data of the study in my master’s thesis.

I have the ability to adapt easily in different teams and groups in various events and occasions and even at work.

The entrepreneurship project in the master’s programme was to conduct a feasibility study on a sports club project. The idea was that the club would be for the elderly from 60 years and older, and to be promoted by former champions of the country.

Practicing my favourite sports (cycling and running), adhering to modest clothes.

The Girl Guides were delegated leadership tasks in the Girl Guides Camp. Awards were achieved during the camp, which reflected effectively on the Girl Guides, as each girl guide did her best and the troop enjoyed everything they delivered.

Personal Statement
Why would you like to become a member of the World Board, and how do you feel you can contribute to the work of WAGGGS?

I joined the Movement from a young age. I went through all age groups and assumed many responsibilities and finally becoming the youngest member of the General Command of Algerian Muslim Scouts, and the youngest member of the National Council.

Through my position as a member of the Association Leadership, my first goal was to expand the scope of the Movement in my country, working to support programmes, initiatives and projects directed at girls. I also actively contribute to strengthening girls’ leadership and community participation in Algeria through developing curricula and projects for girls, and delivering activities that engage all girls of the country, out of my belief in the positive impact of the GG/GS Movement.

I am currently seeking to enhance my leadership capabilities and skills through the global experience to contribute to expanding the Movement’s message reach to every girl in the world, and to contribute to finding solutions and strategies that better serve girls everywhere to improve their lives and enrich their psychological and social conditions.
Since I was a brownie in the Karim Belkacem Regiment of Les Scouts Musulmans Algériens in 2008, I have been involved in scouting, and this has helped me develop my leadership and management skills. Over the years, I have gained extensive experience in scouting, and I have held several leadership positions that have enabled me to hone my abilities.

As a member of the National Board of Les Scouts Musulmans Algériens from 2019-2023, I was the youngest member of the command at just 22 years old, which was a testament to my capability and potential to lead. I was responsible for overseeing the scouting activities of girls in all 58 wilayas of Algeria, and with my team, we planned and executed numerous activities for girls aged 15 to 16 years old. Our focus was on providing scouting education that was in line with the organisation’s values and principles, and we created an environment where the girls could learn new skills, develop their character, and build lifelong relationships with their peers.

To ensure the success of our programmes, we created a comprehensive guide that outlined all the activities the girls could participate in. This guide was a culmination of our efforts, and we were proud to have published it by the end of 2022. Through this experience, I learned how to be strategic in planning and execution, and I developed strong management and leadership skills.

Besides scouting, I am also passionate about using technology to make a positive impact on society. During my university studies, I founded and led various technology-related groups, including the Google Tizi Ouzou developers group and the Tizi Ouzou Women Techmakers Group. My goal was to create a safe space where individuals could learn about and experiment with new technologies, and where women could have equal access to these opportunities.

As the leader of these groups, I had to be proactive in organising meetings, workshops, and events that would attract members and keep them engaged. I also ensured that the activities we planned were relevant and useful to our members. Through these experiences, I developed my organisational and communication skills, and I learned how to motivate and inspire a team.

Moreover, I represented my organisation on a global stage as a Google Women Techmakers programme Ambassador in North Africa and the Middle East. This experience helped me develop skills in representing an organisation in a global setting, which involved effective communication, networking, and leadership.

I also have experience in financial management, having assumed financial responsibility for many local and national activities from an early age. This experience has enabled me to develop a strong understanding of financial planning, budgeting, and management, which is essential for effective leadership and management.
Leaders of the Movement...

I am well aware that assuming different responsibilities, in my professional life in addition to my responsibilities in the association, may constitute a great pressure on me, especially due to my young age. However, I believe that my mental health is a priority; otherwise I will not be able to continue the journey. Therefore, I never overburden myself and I am fully aware of when to go full speed and when to slow down to catch a break.

My distinguished experience with Google developers allowed me to engage with people of different cultures, each with their own ideas and perspectives. The fact that I was able to adapt well to each of them helped me to build relationships that have continued to this day. I believe my experience on the World Board will be similar. It will be a new opportunity to challenge my ability to work within a diverse team.

It is not easy to come from a small village to find yourself one of the decision-makers in a large national organization such as Les Scouts Musulmans Algériens. For me, this was a challenge: To first prove my worth to myself and then to those around me, and also to set an example for my peers. I am well aware that I am at the beginning of the journey, and I may come across situations where I might make mistakes. But I am ready to willingly face them because my mistakes will be my lessons towards excellence.

To supervise a national branch and a national committee where everyone is at least 4 years older than me is not easy at all. But I think I was able to handle it smartly, giving each leader in my team her own space where she can be creative in her field. This enabled us to create a harmonious team, in which we support each other, where the success of one is the success of all and the failure of one is a lesson we learn from as a team.

You are a girl, you are not allowed to do this.... you are a girl, you cannot do that.... You’re not allowed ... you cannot.... phrases that haunted me and haunted every girl who comes from a conservative and small village, but never this was an obstacle to me, rather it was what motivates me to continue to shine and break down all gender barriers. All it takes is one success story to open the door for the rest of the girls to shine. And I am determined to share all my gained experiences throughout my journey with others from my local community to push them towards brilliance.

For me, one of our most important roles as leaders in the GG/GS Movement is to help our girls find their own voice and support them to use it to advocate for issues they believe in, push them to participate in the decision-making process at various levels, and also to enable them to hold leadership positions. This is what I have been working on with my team for the past two years. Currently, the members of the GG/GS Movement in Algeria have a carefully developed curriculum that is capable to fine-tune the leadership skills of all girls from the far north to the far south.

For a person alone to be aware of all the details, this may be difficult. But to coordinate with everyone I work with so that they make it easier for me to know all the details that help me see the full picture clearer is a skill I gained from my work as a computer science engineer. To ask those around me about what I do not know is not a problem for me at all, as I am always ready to learn from those who are more experienced and rely on their wisdom to make logical and rational decisions.

Keeping up with changes and adapting to them easily is what I do on a daily basis in my professional life in particular. It may be tiring at first, but the unwavering support of my family is what keeps me balanced, steady and forward-looking on the right path.

For years, the team of the National Committee for Advanced girl guides and I tried to create a safe space for girls to bring their potentials into prominence. We pushed them to take steps that they had never taken before, to live experiences that they may have had out of reach, and to open doors that were once closed. The National Camp for Advanced Girl Guides, for example, was a milestone in the lives of many of them as it changed their mindsets. Today, we hear stories, one after the other, of their superiority in several areas, an ideal conclusion of my work within the General Command.

It is difficult to mention a specific situation here. It is said that “always has been, always will be”. It basically means ‘If you grew up with it, you will grow old with it’. And so are the values of the GG/GS Movement within me. They accompanied me from my childhood and were my best companions, and I still rely on them in my professional, personal and Girl Guiding journey, and I spread them as much as I can.

Skills and experience

A member of a WAGGGS Member Organisation: I am the director of the UAE Girl Guides Association (UAE GGA), a Full Member Organisation of WAGGGS.

A commitment to the aims and objectives of WAGGGS: As a guide, I have sworn since I joined the movement to commit to the GG/GS aims and Law. And I am committed to the aims and objectives of WAGGGS and to working toward its growth.

An understanding and acceptance of the duties and responsibilities: In order to fulfil my duty, I have to understand the duties and responsibilities that I will perform through the position that I will assume, and this is what I did before I filled out the nomination form.

WAGGGS Leadership model and educational methodology: This Leadership model is a behaviour that I use in my daily practice and scouting life.

A thorough understanding of WAGGGS and the Regional context: my position as Director of the UAE GGA and my work as Vice-chair of the Arab Regional Conference that was held last year in Abu Dhabi, my understanding of WAGGGS, the regional context and their organizational structures has increased.

The ability to listen and learn from others and follow a collaborative approach: to lead any group and work for them, it is necessary to have the skill of listening through good listening we can learn from others as each of us looks at things from a different angle, and this helps us to learn and collaborate in finding solutions.

The ability to communicate in English: I am fluent in English, both verbally and in writing. A skill I acquired during my school years until my doctorate. I also communicated with WAGGGS during the preparatory period for the WAGGGS, Arab Regional Conference, where all the meetings were conducted in English and I faced no difficulties.

The ability to access and use technology: I use the Internet for communication, such as using Zoom, WhatsApp, and Google Meet. I use the Microsoft programme to organize my administrative work and store information.

A willingness to devote time and effort in both preparing for and attending World Board meetings: I will organize my time and devote sufficient time to prepare for and attend the meetings of the WB. I will also devote sufficient time if I’m required to take a role on a WB Committee.

External Relations / Government Relations: When I joined the oil and gas sector in Abu Dhabi in 1991, I strongly started my career to become the first female member of the expanded leadership team in ADNOC. My starting point was in the Public Relations and Communications Department, and then I moved to the position of Director of the Institutional Excellence Department. Later, I got promoted to Deputy Head of the General Services Department. I was also appointed as Chairman of the Entertainment Committee, and a member of the Tender Committee.

Governance: I assumed many roles and positions in various government agencies such as the Board of Directors of the UAE Fencing Federation where I was the first Emirati woman to serve as Secretary General. These positions and roles gave me a precious experience in different systems.

Research and development: I had the opportunity to serve as an associate professor at Abu Dhabi University, where I presented research papers at conferences and published articles on tourism and small industries as well as organisation and management. I also wrote and published a book entitled “Thank You, Khalifa” in 2014, expressing my gratitude for the support of His Highness the Father and the Head of the State.

Influencing and Advocacy Skills: Through enthusiasm, sincere friendship, and my quest to sincerely benefit all those around me, I have been honoured with many awards and certificates of appreciation; In recognition of the achievements I have achieved throughout my career.I obtained a high diploma in the management and establishment of nurseries from Cambridge College in Britain, a master’s degree in cultural and creative industries, and a doctorate in business administration. I am determined to continue my professional advancement in the future.

Marketing and communications, including social media: I always work on establishing a variety of connections and public relations so that I can link the Association with third parties, and I consider social media as one of the most important types of communication that I use.
Leaders of the Movement...

It’s through the LEADING YOURSELF mindset and thinking about my behaviour and impact, that it is possible to explore the values that I believe in, practise self-reflection, analyse mistakes, and recognize successes and how they are reflected when practicing leadership. It’s also through this mindset that we create a space for self-awareness and self-care, so we can realise and create the conditions we need for one to thrive, and develop a plan to become more positive and hence help to love oneself and treat it kindly.

Listening to people is a skill. Most people believe that they can get what they want by speaking without listening and hearing other people’s points of view. Personally, I consider a successful and influential person to be one who challenges himself and listens to the points of view of others. When talking about a particular topic in the workplace, I always give others a chance to talk, listen to them, and inquire about things that are ambiguous to me. This gives me an opportunity to develop my point of view and work more efficiently.

We learn more from personal experiences than from others’ advice and guidance. Some mistakes can be avoided through advice, but sometimes there is no substitute for learning from personal experiences. It is the process of gaining knowledge by doing something myself. For example, in my field, I always try several methods until I get the best and most acceptable result. Through this, many things become apparent to me. Likewise, I always instil in my girl guides the spirit of learning through personal experiences because it gives a clear vision of ideas, as there is nothing better than personal experiences.

Teamwork is working with others and wanting to cooperate to achieve a specific goal, where no one can achieve this goal alone. As the Director of the association, I have to provide all the details to my individuals, identify their respective roles, develop them, control their behaviours, constantly evaluate performance, and keep the team cohesive and cooperative to reach the desired goal. Working flexibly is required, and differing opinions are important and can be used in achieving the goal. This difference may help us try new things, find innovative solutions, and build meaningful constructive relationships.

I try to find things in common with the people I meet in order to facilitate dealings with them. I have to be a role model as a responsible citizen to influence others. For example, in my workplace and in my Girl Guides troupe, I always urge girls and women to explore their potentials in all fields. I try to highlight women who have emerged in leadership fields, brought about real change, and left a positive impact, especially in the field of women’s empowerment and gender equality, and I encourage them to make a difference and take the lead in these fields.

I start with developing myself first and keeping abreast of all that is new in the field of leadership practice, including empowering girls and girl guides to practice leadership, by giving them the opportunity to lead some activities, and encouraging them to practice leadership themselves. In my girl guides troupe, I give the task of leading the activities to the guides themselves. I run discussions, and constantly encourage them, as we should act only as mentors and counsellors. This mindset gives the girl guides the braveness to practice leadership in the right way for them.

Before I start any work, I always try to get the background on the subject, and whether there are any opinions or decisions made in regard to it. I must have a complete picture. This is also what happened when I was assigned as a member of the Preparatory Committee for the WAGGGS, Arab Regional Conference, held last year in Abu Dhabi, where I had to study and research what was done in the previous conferences so that the picture would be clear to me and be able to carry out my task to the fullest.

In order to deal with others, we must first try to know ourselves. To enter the worlds of others and understand their needs and interests, we need to adapt ourselves and work on good observation, ask questions, educate ourselves about our surroundings and different points of view, and build meaningful connections with others, making it easier to adapt to the context.

In order to have a positive impact, I should be innovative. Innovation is the individual’s ability to introduce something new or seek to introduce something new, whether in personal life, at work, or in personal relationships. Innovation in our work has an effective role in the growth of the association or any institution, and in solving the problems it faces. Likewise, evolution and globalization require us to have the skill of innovation and development to have a positive impact. Innovation helps the growth and development of the world’s economy and brings about change in the labour market. So, for innovation to be positive, I have to do proper planning, phased monitoring and evaluation, then hard work and continuous follow-up.

Being connected to my values will help me make good choices that align with my goals. Therefore, we have to uphold the values we set for ourselves to reach what we aspire to. For example, as a member of the WAGGGS, UAE GGA, my choices should be in line with WAGGGS values and goals, to create a positive impact on Girl Guides globally and locally, as well as on society.

Nigerian Girl Guides Association

Nominated by:  Nigerian Girl Guides Association
Languages Spoken:  Kalabari as mother tongue and fluent English

Personal Statement
Why would you like to become a member of the World Board, and how do you feel you can contribute to the work of WAGGGS?

As a dedicated member of the Girl Guiding/Girl Scouting Movement for over two decades, I am passionate about developing the potential of girls and young women. I have previously served in various leadership roles including as a unit Captain, State Commissioner, and Eastern Zonal Secretary for the Nigerian Girl Guides Association (NGGA). I have also served on several committees such as the WAGGGS Nomination Sub-Committee and the Olave Awards Committee.

Throughout my volunteer experiences, I have grown both personally and professionally. I have had the opportunity to work with sisters from all over the world and have participated in numerous programmes organised by WAGGGS and other partners. I am a mentor and coach to young and adult women in Guiding, my Church, my work, and my business place, and I am committed to making valuable contributions to society.

I would like to become a member of the World Board because I see it as an opportunity to give back to the Movement by harnessing my diverse competencies and progressive volunteer experiences. As a member of the Board, I hope to represent the Africa Region and be a strong voice at the global stage. Additionally, I aim to knit Member Organisations together, strengthen the leadership capacities of growing Member Organisations, and support meaningful engagement of young and adult members at all levels of the Movement.

I bring expertise in project design, development, management, monitoring, and evaluation to the team. I am confident that I can contribute positively to the work of WAGGGS and make a meaningful impact.
Skills and experience

I am a Mass Communication graduate and a teacher at a Community Secondary School in Port Harcourt, Nigeria. Throughout my career, I have demonstrated a strong commitment to the Nigerian Girl Guides Association (NGGA), rising through the ranks, and learning from the experiences offered to me to grow, lead, and impart my world.

As the National Project Commissioner of NGGA, I possess valuable financial management skills, including fund development, donor relations, and external/government relations. I have an in-depth understanding of the complex and diverse Regional structure and how many MOs operate, making me an invaluable asset to NGGA’s strategic planning.

My involvement in multiple committees and projects within the NGGA has helped me to hone a collaborative approach, cultural sensibility, and ability to work in a global and multicultural context. I have led various initiatives, including the Her World, Her Voice Project, Juliette Low Seminar (JLS) Nigeria Hub, UN Women Risk Communication and Community Engagement (RCCE) project, UN Women Continuous Voters Registration (CVR) Project, and NGGA Girls Are Valuable (GAV) Project.

In my service to NGGA, I liaise with National and State Volunteers, international and local stakeholders, partners, and donors, showcasing my excellent communication, diplomatic, lobbying, and negotiation skills. As a confident, disciplined, and effective team player, I work well under pressure, multitask, and deliver on timelines, offering my unique skill set in intergenerational partnerships.

My experience in youth engagement and empowerment for the development of the girl child and young women across the country has further sharpened my leadership qualities. As a member of the National Board in my MO, I have played a key role in the development of my Association’s strategic plan for three consecutive terms, articulating WAGGGS’ mission, how we can move with the new COMPASS 2032 vision, WAGGGS leadership model, and our non-formal education methodology in various training camps and stakeholder meetings.

In my fieldwork, I have witnessed first-hand the challenges and opportunities facing girls and young women globally, and I have developed an empathetic approach to addressing their concerns. I keep encouraging young women within and outside NGGA in their personal and professional lives, as they confide in me about the challenges and inequalities they face because of their gender. Currently, there are about twenty (20) young women who sit on their States’ boards while five (5) young women serve on key decision-making bodies and working Committees.

I am willing to continue to learn and develop myself and to stay relevant in any space I find myself, including being open to upskilling. I bring to the table a sound independent judgment and gentle but assertive opinions, born from learning from the younger generation about tech and taking advice from those who have gone ahead of me on various issues.

I attest that I understand and accept the legal duties, responsibilities, and liabilities of the role of the World Board, and bearing all these factors in mind, I am willing to serve. The multitasking and attendance of crucial meetings with fast turnaround time for outputs in my previous roles have prepared me for what lies ahead with the World Board role. I am ready to devote the required time and effort to the World Board meetings and positively and professionally represent WAGGGS both within and outside the Movement.

In conclusion, my knowledge and skills developed from extensive experience in NGGA, and my willingness to grow and adapt make me the ideal candidate for the World Board role. Thank you for considering me for this invaluable opportunity to serve.
When I decided to treat myself to a spa session; had body massage, manicure, pedicure etc., to enhance my confidence and feel better mentally.

As the head of Marriage Counselling team in my church, I had to subject myself to different teachings and study to further empower me to perform in my role.

A time I invested in a cooperative activity and there was a huge loss at the end. After that experience, I always investigate properly before investing in group initiatives.

As a Project Commissioner, I ensured that all the members of my team identified their roles within the different projects NGGA is implementing to maximize the skills and competence of everyone on the team.

At my home, there is no chore for any particular gender. Chores are delegated equally without discrimination.

As a caterer, I support every member of my staff at my Canteen to serve as a Manager weekly. Each young woman takes it in turn to supervise and oversee the activities of the Canteen.

Upon my assumption as the National Project Commissioner of NGGA which was also my first time on the key decision making platform, I made enquiries on the modus operandi from my predecessor to get me acquainted with the Board conduct.

A family prayer programme that required me to stay awake till 3am and sleep on a mat thereafter with other members of my external family.

I started entrepreneurship venture (an annual savings scheme) that enables families save money monthly for food supplies in December. It reduces the stress to buying items expensive at the end of the year.

When I had to choose to change the venue of an event with the approval of the Chief Commissioner to save more funds for the Association to enable implementation of more activities.

Personal Statement
Why would you like to become a member of the World Board, and how do you feel you can contribute to the work of WAGGGS?

Being a guide has shaped the person I’m today. I’m not afraid to speak up, express myself, stand for others and create the world with equal opportunities for everyone. WAGGGS educational methods and values have been my guidance.

I have been in Związek Harcerstwa Polskiego (ZHP) since I was 11 years old - member, unit leader, trainer, regional international adviser (6000 members) and ZHP International Commissioner (110000 members) for last 7 years. I worked in international teams, also as WAGGGS regional volunteer (MO support, capacity-building, International Commission induction). I’m passionate and confident about WAGGGS’ mission and vision, committed to put my experience and energy into shaping and strengthening its present and future.

I’m from a SAGNO and a female unit, I understand the importance of WAGGGS both in girl-only and coeducational settings.

I’m a Biotechnologist, quality expert working in global pharmaceutical company. I make informed, risk-based decisions assuring medicines quality. I’m an engineer, curious, creative, solution-oriented woman. At work I’m part of the Women’s Innovation Network, which helps me practise my values in a professional setting.

I come from Poland – a country in central Europe, currently live in Switzerland together with my husband who comes from the Middle East.

I want to serve WAGGGS. In the World Board, I’ll use my leadership, interpersonal skills, great communication abilities, strategic thinking, and governance knowledge to contribute to the movement. I will bring energy and openness to reflect, listen, collaborate with MOs and WAGGGS (staff and volunteers) in relevant dynamic organisation for all girls wherever they live. I’m positive, always see people’s potential, collaborate to act inclusively, and consider all perspectives. I delegate responsibilities. I’m hard-working, well-structured, not afraid of difficult conversations. I appreciate transparency and integrity. My knowledge and experience will impact WAGGGS to continue to be thriving, innovative, agile, sustainable, attractive, girl-led and life-changing organisation. I’m ready for this adventure, opening a new and exciting chapter in my life.
Skills and experience

I cherish WAGGGS’ diversity – different MOs, regions characteristic and cultures, the unique contexts and variety that MOs operate in as an asset for greater development of the movement.

As IC I learnt and understood the governance, role of World Board trustees, legal duties, financial responsibilities. Being regional volunteer strengthened my knowledge of WAGGGS educational methods, leadership, and WAGGGS importance. Through conferences, global events, I built strong networks and connections with MOs and ICs. I’m ethical, active, and determined to collaborate in finding solutions while thinking broadly and openly. I will support MOs and Regions in challenges, and opportunities. I’m flexible, not afraid of adapting to any given context or challenging status quo. I demonstrated creative strategic thinking as ZHP and WAGGGS volunteer.

How I meet the desirable qualities?

Governance and policy development
I have experience in developing guidelines and strategies for international cooperation/other areas on national level. Assisting ZHP leadership in decision-making, statutes compliance and strategy development. Submitting motions/amendments during WAGGGS conferences. Workwise I operate within the legal framework for medicines. I shape guidelines, procedures and make decisions which assure that system meets international law and quality requirements.

HR Management
At work I supported 100+ people department in executing daily activities. As a volunteer I led multiple teams of staff and volunteers, often mixed, working on which required agility and flexibility to keep up motivation and effectiveness. Management of ZHP International Department, cooperating with 17 International Advisers. Leading department in European Jamboree 2020 Planning Team (20+ people, international), (Co-)led several events and teams, online and in-person, including conference for International Day of the Girl (IDG) (2019-2023) and Polish JLS Team.

At work I specialise in risk assessment, participate in crisis management meetings drawing on given knowledge to mitigate the risk and act appropriately in case of drug shortage or quality related challenges. It equips me with knowledge and readiness to face the crisis.

Financial and risk management
As IC I contributed to development and monitoring of financial plans for international cooperation. One of the most significant experiences was being responsible for JLS2019 Polish hub plan/budget. Workwise, responsible for forecasting, and monitoring the budget for 100+ people department, managing spendings/invoices in close collaboration with the financial department, adjusting plans based on risk.

Fund development
As IC I worked closely with ZHP national fundraising team, being responsible for funds obtained via FBM Fund, Surf Smart Fund, WAGGGS Appeal, Global Youth Mobilization etc. Each time we worked together with different teams developing grant application, example being WAGGGS Appeal, where we analyzed ZHP needs in service for Ukrainian refugees and created projects meeting those needs thanks to provided funding.

External relations/advocacy
I represented MO and WAGGGS in multiple capacities when contacting embassies, speaking during European Economic and Social Committee event in 2022; creating annual IDG advocating educational event or supporting ZHP-WAGGGS delegation for COP2018 and multiple WAGGGS conferences as head delegate. I’m hard-working and active ambassador of the movement, which I want to demonstrate acting as WAGGGS trustee.

Marketing/communications/social media
I co-created campaigns (ex. WTD) and content published via ZHP social media, ZHP television, newspapers, and local TV channels. I’m confident public speaker, able to take a stand on behalf of organisation, young people, girls and women worldwide. My volunteering experience was mentioned in my employer’s annual report for 2021.

Technology strategy/digital transformation
Confident user of technology and platforms. I see the benefit of using digital spaces and technology (ex. working remotely, enabling participation etc). At the same time, I know very well the unique experience and positive outcomes of in person events and I am open to explore the topic further, to best fit scouting and guiding reality. Initiator of Surf Smart programme in Poland.

Identifying/facilitating the learning and development
Practising WAGGGS leadership model helps me being better leader. I use over 10 years’ experience as trainer on all ZHP levels and internationally (WAGGGS facilitator, JLS lead, excellent knowledge of GG/GS educational method and non-formal education) to inspire others and help them lead. I demonstrated that as experienced IC, Europe, and global volunteer mentoring, supporting MOs in capacity-building, facilitating trainings, co-creating IC-induction pack. I offered international adventures and connections to young people; enriched ZHP programme by implementing WAGGGS programmes (WTD, FBM, Be The Change, etc).

Data analysis, Research & Development
Analytical thinker, attentive to details, able to make well-informed decisions. I analyse data, collaborate with internal and external stakeholders, gather experts-input, and based on this act quick and make robust decisions. I possess project-management skills, monitor performance, evaluate processes, obtain information through research. It is relevant at work and as part of my commitment with ZHP Research Institute.
Leaders of the Movement...

In 2020 everything in my life changed – I got married, changed work, moved countries and pandemic was still ongoing. While having a positive attitude I took time to reflect and shape step by step the journey in all those aspects so that I stay calm and in peace with myself and keep the balance between work-life-scouting. I put my wellbeing first, took care of my relations, family, colleagues at work and myself. It built me stronger and confident. Sharing with my friends and taking a walk in nature helped me stay connected to myself and others.

While preparing for WAGGGS World Conferences in delegation we reached out to World Board candidates/authors of motions and other MOs to get to know different perspectives. Actively asking questions, constructively challenging, exploring different options, cooperating with other MOs (sometimes more impacted by motion) and trying to understand their context helped us make better decisions. I challenge myself on a daily basis by understanding and putting myself in the shoes of my husband’s family in Lebanon. I am always eager to learn and evaluate my views. I currently live and work in Switzerland, needed to understand how things work here and adapt to the culture and customs.

At work I became a mentor to new employees supporting their onboarding. Learning from various experiences we improved the employee experience and training effectiveness. When I changed job in 2020 it took me a while to understand the dynamic of the new international team, different personalities, cultural backgrounds. And all in pandemic context (lockdown). I have learnt a lot about myself and others. I kept asking questions to confirm my understanding, made efforts to build bonds and trust with each member in an online environment when everyone comes from different countries, working every day online without possibility to meet.

I’m a people’s person. People say I inspire others to see opportunities and the very best of the movement. I am encouraging people to grow and contribute. I became a mentor for several new ICs in Europe Region and being one of the more experienced ones I consciously tried to create a space where everyone regardless of the experience can be heard and contribute (individual discussions, group meetings, session during IC Forum etc). In my many projects as IC I have very good relationships with other WAGGGS ICs, WAGGGS volunteers and staff.

I’m an engineer – biotechnologist working in science (STEM-related) field of pharmaceutical industry. I graduated as Master of Science, Engineer at the University of Technology. Even though my class was relatively balanced I witnessed smaller number of women in different fields/classes. I am proud I finished this degree and can be an example of female engineering challenging stereotypes. IDG advocacy educational event was established in ZHP to open conversation about stereotypes, barriers that girls face and data-based discussions about girl/women empowerment/appreciation/self-confidence. We have led several pieces of research about empowerment of girls, decision making process, women in governance statistics etc, which are available for all the members.

In 2019 Poland organised one of the JLS hub and sent 13 young people to participate in JLS2019 in different hubs around the world. I have led the organising team and supported participants in their 100 girls’ projects realized after the event. Participation in JLS allowed our members to have direct WAGGGS experience and through the projects WAGGGS directly reached the audience of over 1500 girls in our association. It has been an important experience for me and participants, through which I was able to impact and inspire young women to take up leadership roles.

At work I collaborate with different departments and stakeholders (internal and external) to build necessary knowledge about different quality issues to be able to make decisions. Before I moved to Switzerland I did the research, noted down important information, participated in language and cultural training, reached out for advice from colleagues who have been or live in Switzerland to build the basic knowledge for me and facilitate the change. ZHP Crisis Management Group was composed of different people that only working together sharing information we were able to address the situation appropriately. I have also reached out to MO network for inspirations of solutions.

My move to another country allowed me to examine and develop my adaptability – to work system, taxes, languages, customs, and traditions. COVID added an extra layer – adaptation to work from home and observing restrictions. Studying abroad, intercultural marriage, international friendships and business relations taught me to adapt, actively listen, and curiously explore mindsets different from mine. During travelling or working I easily adapt to new environment and culture. I reflect, monitor, and stay sensitive. I’m learning fast about different ways of doing things and find ways to cooperate with people from very different cultural backgrounds. When running trainings, including WAGGGS ones, I adapted the sessions to various audiences.

COVID pandemic proved how creative and innovative I could be to maintain or create an even greater impact of our educational mission for youth. I contributed to creating online programme, carried on with creative ideas for units and teams on all levels of association, moved many aspects of our work online but also revisited the way we work internationally or in MO to take benefit from challenging situations. Together with others I have developed the system and trainings for FBM programme through which we have trained ambassadors of the programme in all ZHP Regions and reached thousands of scouts and guides locally.

It feels like my entire life was influenced by guiding and scouting values, the Girl Guide promise and law and willingness to be an active citizen of my community and the world. I have received the Europe Region Medal of Service for being WAGGGS ambassador in ZHP and the region. I transfer my values into my work contributing to Women in Innovation Employee Resource Network, which stands for empowering women in the workplace. I’m passionate about WAGGGS and act as its advocate wherever possible. It makes me feel fulfilled, empowered and happy.

Personal Statement
Why would you like to become a member of the World Board, and how do you feel you can contribute to the work of WAGGGS?

First of all, I am not too talkative, but I am a hard worker! So, I want to push for more work to advance the world association and make a positive change globally. In fact, I absolutely believe that positive change must be studied so that it touches the roots and then branches out of the rest of the branches.

From an early age, I was convinced that I could make a positive difference in my small group, some years later, I was convinced that to make it more efficient and bigger I should work on it from my region, then I was working for this change from the national board, and I was the youngest member in the national board. I worked hard especially in the subject of the violence against women. This subject means a lot for me, because at some point my mother was a victim of it. So, the circle of my ambitions expanded until I was involved in my Arab region within a team who wrote the regional educational programme of activities for Girl Scouts aged between 18 and 21 years. I was feeling that the change that we were making was bigger than the impact at the national level. But, without my experiences at the national level, I won’t be the same person as I am.

Honestly, the main experience that pushed me to apply for this position is: the young women research team project. The motion 32! I was one of the team and I felt that we made a huge change. So now, I want to use my experiences and skills to help the girls globally to make a positive change, and to be part of it.

I also want to be a kind of role model, so my candidacy will be an opportunity to give a good image to the World Board that brings together young women experts and reflects the integration between generations.
Skills and experience

I had many experiences in developing educational programmes and curricula for young women between the ages of 17 and 23. These experiences allowed me to gain true expertise for curriculum writing and educational programme design.

I worked with a team on formulating the vision and strategy for the Tunisian Scouts.

My experience in training and facilitation at the national, regional, or global level has contributed to simplifying the global leadership model for Girl Guides and Girl Scouts and myself, as I find myself practising various styles of leadership in all aspects of my life.

I was part of the planning team for many national activities and national training courses.

I was part of the planning team of the first regional Arab forum for young guides, this experience was unique; it was the first training that I prepared as a YWRT member.

I had many experiences with translations with WAGGGS; so, I am very familiar with the technical words of WAGGGS in English, French and Arabic.

I obtained the sense of analysis thanks to my experience within the young women research team (the Motion 32 team). It was an enriching experience at all levels. We worked as a “micro” world committee. I was very involved in encouraging young girls to take up opportunities.

My experience at the CSW57 it was a real turning point in my life. I made my first speech there on violence against women, it is very memorable to me. This experience has allowed me to carry out many varied projects, for many girls, alone or among a team.
When I failed in the last year of my bachelor’s degree at the university, at first, I was very upset, but I remember very well, I looked at the mirror and I was glad that I spoke to myself carefully and said that nothing could shake my self-confidence. I did many exercises and meditations that helped me pass the stage with distinction. And in the coming year, I was one of the first to obtain a bachelor’s degree at the university brilliantly.

In my work, as a sales manager, I faced many times kind of provocations of customers, and I found myself forced to absorb their anger, bear the pressures, and control my nerves to find solutions.

Recently, there was a problem between a member of my family and my mother. At first, I thought of defending my mother, but soon I was trying to listen to the other side, so I realized at that time that the problem was a pure misunderstanding, and that both parties loved each other. Instead of making the problem bigger, I was able to bring the two parties closer by clarifying the situation!

In my local group, it happened that the Girl Guide was absent, and as I am the one in charge of the girls, everyone thought I was going to replace her, but I preferred to let a Girl Scout lead a workshop in which she is an expert. At first, she was too shy and surprised, but I encouraged her, and she did a good job. Today she has become a leader, and she still talks about this experience.

The idea of homosexuality, which is considered a taboo subject in my society, I was completely refusing to discuss this subject, until I found myself in a discussion circle about freedoms and the extent to which we accept them. And we talked about homosexuality with homosexual people I found myself accepting the other, no matter how different he is. It was very challenging, but I felt very glad and proud of myself.

Every moment I learn from my own feelings and personal experiences, there is a situation that has stuck in my mind since I was a child when I found a cleaning woman who was very old bending over with great difficulty to grab a piece of paper that was thrown out of a car window. I felt sorry for her. Since then, I am always running to pick up anything lying on the ground. The image of the old woman struggling is always in my mind.

Through the programme of 16 days of activism against gender-based violence, it was difficult to collect testimonies from women who were subjected to moral or material violence, and we had difficulty convincing them to express themselves and share their experiences, until we were able to collect these experiences through an electronic platform that Women affected by using pseudonyms so, testimonies were anonymous. We finally found an online space that helped us listen to them. In my work, we have from time to time some interns, so I am doing my best to help them, to answer to any kind of question, because there is no stupid question. And I always help them to feel more confident.

To encourage preserving the environment and avoiding the use of plastic, I and my small group replaced plastic bins by creating containers that we made with reused wood to preserve the environment. We also encouraged the residents to collect plastic, and we offered a set of symbolic prizes for those who collect the biggest plastic weight.

I remember very well the day I chose to distribute food to those who were fasting for a whole month and the distribution was daily! Despite the tiredness and exhaustion and some of negative people tried to frustrate me, I just chose the value of volunteering and giving, no matter how tired and exhausted it cost me. Despite all the circumstances, I was one of the happiest creatures when I succeeded in my mission and that really motivated all volunteers.

Personal Statement
Why would you like to become a member of the World Board, and how do you feel you can contribute to the work of WAGGGS?

I joined the Movement when I was five years old and completed all its stages: brownies, girl guides, and young women. 20 years of continuous work and giving without limits with the Kuwait Girl Guides Association, during which I honed my skills. The KGGA with its distinguished leaders, headed by the chair, Ms Hind, the International Commissioner, Najat, and the General Supervisor of GG, Dr Amal, gave me unlimited opportunities to develop my skills and refine my personality until I seized the opportunity to work for the Arab region as a volunteer in the Training Committee for two years, and to work for WAGGGS as a member of the CAT Mentors for 2 years.

I participated in camps, training programmes, conferences and events in Kuwait. The GG Movement has become part of my personality, and it has educated me about different cultures and civilizations. To become a member of the World Board has been my goal since I was an advanced Girl Guide, feeling proud to be part of a World Organisation that supports girls.

Becoming a member of the WB is a goal that requires a lot of work from me, despite my preoccupation with work and life matters. But I feel that I can contribute to the work of WAGGGS in supporting every girl, offering her opportunities and programmes that develop her.

I believe in the saying “Be the change that you wish to see in this world” and that the radical change that has happened to me since I joined the Movement makes me grateful for my belonging to such a meaningful and supportive movement for girls.

I hope that if I had the opportunity to join the World Board, every girl in the movement would have the opportunity for the positive change she wishes.
The skills I acquired from the Movement are many, including working within a team and working under pressure. I have communication skills in three languages, the ability to speak up and influence others and communicate information clearly. This is due to many seminars and lectures that I have presented (Corona Positives - My Health is a Decision - My Identity), and my participation in Young Women’s Forums.

I have the desire to learn and always strive to acquire new skills and keep pace with hi-tech development. I always strive to learn about new platforms and websites to benefit my students and improve my work. I worked as a technical support in most of the activities of the KGGA, in two training events in the Arab Region, and the training on strategies. I gained the skill of flexibility and the ability to manage priorities, practising my professional work during official working hours, and then volunteering to serve students through the “excellence” platform, and then doing my work as a volunteer at KGGA.

What the GG/GS life has instilled in me are leadership skills and a positive attitude. I gained more of these skills after my participation in the leadership training in the UAE, the UPS programme “Be the change” in Jordan, and assuming leadership tasks within my association such as leading activities or workshops with young women.

I have also gained planning and organising skills since I joined the Movement, having “Be Prepared” as our motto. I am always ready to quickly alternate plans and adjust the timing for programmes and workshops. I also enjoy experiencing new cultures through our regional and world activities. I work effectively within 3 teams at the same time while committing to everything I have to do besides my basic professional work. After working for several years, I have the ability to solve problems with the least possible harm to all parties. I utilise my organising skills in organising seminars and workshops in my association, such as the “Advocate for Your Rights” workshop, in which I had the honour to work with an elite group from the KGGA, the Arab Region and the global team. It was a successful workshop in all aspects.

I always work with passion in my volunteer work and my job as a school teacher to inspire others, just as I am inspired by many role models from the movement who spark my passion to succeed and develop my skills.
I recently noticed a decline in the academic level of one of my students, asking the school psychologist, she was going through difficult circumstances that led to this decline. In addition to this decline, she had a sense of guilt. I supported her step by step to get over the problem and dedicated hours to her to raise her level until she got through her crisis.

We cannot avoid having stressful workloads sometimes. In such circumstances, I try to show young women other perspectives that they may not know and how to control their feelings.

It may be hard for a girl to control her feelings and not show them. But it creates a strong personality.

I distribute the work equally to all members of the team, giving each one the task that suits her skills, and I give them more opportunity and space to express their perspectives and opinions.

Setting expectations is an important thing to work in passion, but there are expectations that may not be met, and here comes my role in mitigating the effects of disappointment on the girl.

I give the appropriate opportunity to every young woman, manage the work so as to develop the abilities of every young woman, and give them opportunities to practise leadership.

I look for information from more than one reliable source and listen to all parties to ascertain the source of information.

Adapting to the context was often during the COVID crisis as we tried to adapt to the crisis through the use of technology.

I create new strategies in both my professional and volunteer work to communicate information in an innovative and new manner that takes into account individual differences.

We choose training programmes based on girls’ needs, taking into account their community value.

Personal Statement

Why would you like to become a member of the World Board, and how do you feel you can contribute to the work of WAGGGS?

I believe that my personal, professional and guiding backgrounds allow me to adopt an intercultural and educational approach which is crucial for our movement on a global level. By joining the World Board, I would like to take part in spreading the models of leadership our society needs.

Through non formal education, our organisations offer a unique experience: preparing for life in society, developing reciprocal understanding, and fostering commitment. Belonging to an international organisation such as WAGGGS allows to stay aware of the global context in which we act. In particular, I believe WAGGGS as a global movement has a role to play in helping MOs prepare the new generations to tackle the great challenges of our time (environmental crisis, peace education, discrimination based on gender) thanks to our educational proposal, the guiding method.

On a more personal note, I am convinced that sitting on the World Board would be an opportunity for personal growth. After having served as International Commissioner and then Vice-chair of my association, it would represent a coherent next step on my guiding path. I am eager to discover new ways of working and to acquire new skills. By the roles I have had in previous Regional and World Conferences, I have gained good knowledge of the governance of our movement and I would be particularly happy to continue my contribution to WAGGGS in that field.

I also think that the World Board should reflect as much as possible the variety of Member Organisations in their specificities – be they of size, culture, language, educational practices, spirituality, etc. In that sense, I can bring the knowledge of how small-size organisations work, of how federations function, of how co-educational programmes are shaped, and of how joint work between staff and volunteers is conducted.
Skills and experience

My experience in guiding and scouting is multilevel and ranges from being a leader in a local group to serving as vice-chair of my component association (Eclaireuses Eclaireurs de France). In that capacity, from 2020 to 2022, I acquired many new skills. Having served on the Board of my component association and of the French MO, I know what high-level strategic oversight of an organisation means, as opposed to the day-to-day work I have conducted in other roles. I now understand clearly that the governance of an organisation should always remain focused on strategic decisions and on long-term orientations.

The position of vice-chair of my association was also an important learning experience in various fields: organisational development, finances, risk management, human resources – in particular responsibility of staff. During the two-years’ term I served as vice-chair, the organisation went through staff restructuring on a national level. We also went through a financially challenging period thanks to which we laid the foundations for a new funding model.

Before that, I served as International Commissioner of my organisation for five years: as such, I met many of my fellow ICs and those encounters helped me have a good grasp of the diversity of our movement. I attended numerous national and international events, and I took part in the revision of the international strategy of my association – leading to the establishing of over ten new partnerships with guiding and scouting associations all across the world, and to shaping an international educational programme based on the Sustainable Development Goals. As an IC, I was also the co-lead of a new major funding project from the French Development Agency which allowed for the recognition of the role of non-formal education in international solidarity. This experience has helped me form an idea on how the international dimension of guiding and scouting can significantly contribute to global educational ambitions.

Generally speaking, in my association I have always been involved in the pedagogical field: first as a leader for four years, then as a camp leader for three years, and more recently as co-leader of the Educational Method Commission (a commission which coordinates the work of eight national volunteer teams). I started as a WAGGGS volunteer in that field, by joining in the 2013-2016 Europe Region triennium as co-leader of the Training and Events group. Both within WAGGGS and inside my own association, I have a strong experience in coordinating volunteers. I also have extensive experience in working with networks of both staff and volunteers all sharing common purposes, and all collaborating in shared projects.

Within WAGGGS, the most recent volunteer positions I have had are mainly related to governance. As a member of various procedural teams both at regional and world level for Conferences, I have gained detailed knowledge of the governance of our movement and – in particular as Procedural Coordinator at the last World Conference – I was lucky to have the opportunity to interact with many MOs and get a better sense of the diversity of our organisation. As chair of the last Europe Region Conference, I worked hard at giving a chance to all MOs to take part in the discussions, and together with the conference team we created the circumstances for smooth Conference proceedings. Thanks to these various Conference experiences, I have recently been asked to join the WAGGGS Governance Committee.

In my professional life, I am a lecturer at university. I believe that being a teacher has helped me in many ways. It has shaped my way of relating to others in the sense that, daily, I am in contact with people whom I guide through learning but also on their path towards important life choices, while respecting who they are and always trying to adapt to their capabilities. Teaching has also helped me feel comfortable when talking to large audiences. As a researcher, I am used to dealing with diverse and complex data, as well as working on textual sources and documents of various kinds. Both as a teacher and as a researcher, I value critical thinking. My choice of a career in academia also reflects my eagerness to learn, my curiosity and my determination.

Through my personal experience – which has given me the chance to live in four different countries – and thanks both to my various guiding roles and to my career in modern languages, interculturality has always been central in my life.

I would like to finish by referring to the leadership mind-sets which I believe represent me best: collaborative, reflective, responsible and with a global approach.
Leaders of the Movement...

In my studies and in my career, I have been through various challenging competitive examinations. I believe I was able to overcome those stressful periods by allowing time off for myself on a weekly routine (exercising, reading or going to the cinema). When I was a camp leader, I would always get up before the others so I could take advantage of a few peaceful minutes, ideally even see the sun rise!

As vice-chair of my component association, I brought to the rest of the board an international mind-set. Whenever we were facing challenges, I suggested we had a look at how other organisations (national and international) were tackling the same issues. It helped quite a few times!

The first leadership training I attended was a huge eye-opener. During the first day, I was told by a fellow trainee that I was too assertive and that it unsettled other people in the group. I was taken-aback as I had always considered myself as mindful of others. It took me the whole week to understand she was right and to adapt, but the memory of this straightforward comment has ever since been a reminder to take into account others before expressing my views.

I believe the trickiest experience as team-leader was when we were preparing for the last World Conference. As a procedural team, we worked for over a year-and-a-half because the in-person 2020 Conference was postponed to 2021 and was held online. I coordinated the Procedural team which delivered the first-ever online general assembly of WAGGGS and none of us had planned on such a long commitment and such a challenging process! Throughout the proceedings, I always tried to make sure that the whole team was on-board and that all were able to cope with the circumstances.

Until recently, whenever I was asked about how being a woman had influenced my career, I would usually answer that I was lucky enough to have never actually faced gender discrimination. A year ago, a student in sociology was conducting a survey on women in academia and asked if I could answer a few questions. It was a real eye-opener as I realised how the roles of my colleagues and I were significantly impacted by gender: as everywhere else, high-level strategic responsibilities tend to be taken up by men, and realized how the roles of my colleagues and I were significantly impacted by gender: as everywhere else, high-level strategic responsibilities tend to be taken up by men, and

As a leader, and now as a trainer, I always try to pay particular attention to how groups function, and to who takes the lead. Being in a co-educational organisation, this means always making sure that division of tasks is not based on gender. It requires never letting one’s guard down and examining, in any given group project, how roles are distributed. I believe this has helped me develop a habit of always standing back and analysing the group dynamics.

This mind-set is surely the one that I have developed best in my work as a researcher. I remember that I was quite struck when, at our first WAGGGS Regional volunteer training, I heard the “elephant” narrative (a group of people struggle to guess what an elephant is because individually they can only see a very small part of the animal). I believe that, unfortunately, it is a very good allegory of how we usually act in decision-making: seeing only one small portion of the big-picture and jumping to conclusions. Being aware of how one’s own point of view is necessarily limitative is already a good step towards adopting the “big picture” perspective.

This is for sure the skill I have had more opportunities to experience, since I lived abroad in different cultural settings. My position as a long-term volunteer in Sweden (within the 2011 World Scout Jamboree planning team) was most certainly full of discoveries in terms of adapting to various contexts. Constant adaptation was needed because, on the one hand, I was myself discovering this culture and, on the other hand, the planning team was preparing for an international event and thus trying to take into account cultural differences as much as possible. So I was at the same time discovering a new culture and taking part in making this culture accessible to all.

As International Commissioner in the period during which the Sustainable Development Goals were defined, I worked hard together with the team to identify the role we could play. This lead to an international seminar during which we shaped a programme and a series of activities which are still used today in my organisation to train leaders and young adults on how their action at local level can have an impact on a global level. It thus laid to a major restructuring of our international educational offer, but also to us advocating in order for youth organisations to be recognised as actors of the international solidarity sector.

There are two volunteer roles I have taken up outside of guiding and scouting which I believe represent best my values. One is giving French lessons to newly arrived children or asylum seekers. The other is taking part in a community composting site in a shared-garden which has recently opened close to my home. This is in fact rather unusual in big French cities, but I find it a concrete way to act towards reducing waste, and it has helped me realise how much we can contribute at our own level.

Personal Statement
Why would you like to become a member of the World Board, and how do you feel you can contribute to the work of WAGGGS?

I am very fortunate to have benefited from WAGGGS Programmes in different areas while continuing to volunteer with Tanzania Girl Guides Association.

Becoming a member of the World Board is an opportunity to be a part of a team supporting the dreams of girls and young women together with enabling them living to their fullest potentials all around the world. This is the time to continue implementing my passion in advocacy for girls and young women. My background, opportunities and professional background give me a chance to contribute ideas, and support the projects under WAGGGS. From a Juliette Low Seminar in 2015 to being a WAGGGS Delegate and an advocacy Champion to the 62nd and 63rd Commission on the Status for Women and leading the delegation to the African Region Conference, hosting the Conference, and representing WAGGGS at the Global Youth Mobilization Board.

These experiences have inspired me, built me to want to support WAGGGS girls and young women to reach their fullest potential.
I am an active member of Tanzania Girl Guide Association, currently volunteering as a Training Commissioner, supporting several WAGGGS Programmes implementation and WAGGGS Leadership Model training. I am part of WAGGGS Core mission and Volunteering Pool and Stop the Violence Global Facilitator.

I am part of the National Executive Board of my Association and this has involved reviewing the budget and financial reports, and providing advice on strategic planning. I work together with other volunteers, guide the staff by providing ideas as well as incorporate new ways shared by experts in the association, I am currently heading the Committee that supports Programmes, training and fundraising as a board member.

Through WAGGGS I have had an opportunity to volunteer and collaborate with people of different cultures and nationalities in different countries. I was a programme volunteer at Our Cabaña in 2017 for five months, and facilitated Juliette Low Seminar in 2019 at Sangam World Centre. I represented my Chief Commissioner at the African Region Conference in Rwanda and led the delegation in pitching to host the next African Conference (2022) which we won.

I was part of the Global Youth Movement(GYM) Youth Board Member representing WAGGGS together with the current WAGGGS CEO and other youth and leaders of the big 6 youth organisations.

As GYM Youth Board member I have been able to represent GYM at Global Platforms and fundraising for the programme. This includes facilitating the Transforming Education event advocating for Non Formal education and The world Health summit advocating for young peoples engagement in Public Health spaces.

As an Advocacy champion and WAGGGS Delegate to the 62nd and 63rd Commission on the Status for Women I was able to participate in the launching of Girl Powered Nutrition programme with Nutrition International CEO and met The honourable Canadian Minister Marie-Claude Bibeau, I spoke at different events about girls and young women’s experiences and lobbied for change of policies for girls’ wellbeing.

As a member of National Executive Board of Tanzania Girl Guide Association and now as a board member of Global Youth Mobilisation Generation Disrupted (GYMGD) Project I have had an experience in Governance, Constitution review of my Association. I have a chance to participate in discussions when legal consultation has been involved, contracts reviewed and financial reviews. I have contributed on the development of the structure of the GYMGD Project the possible collaboration and Risk management discussions with the Programme leads.

As a youth volunteer I led a team of young leaders in creating and running the Associations social media. I advised the Board on budgeting for the budgeting of website running and expert’s consultation.

I am able to communicate and run meetings online. I have facilitated trainings online and my last online session was on Female Genital Mutilation that was run on zoom coordinated with YESS Team Tanzania.

I have worked in HIV/AIDS Prevention programme among the Key and Vulnerable Population. I used to supervise a team of Facility and Community Health care workers in providing services on HIV/AIDS Prevention. The team has different activities which are, data collection, analysis and I collaborate with Strategic information Teams in Monitoring and evaluation of the programme which is donor funded. I get to work with government officials since the project I work with facilitates the government Health workers in providing services to the community and reaching the Key and Vulnerable population. I do provide mentorship and work closely with Regional Health Management Teams in supportive supervision.

I am a Rotarian and led the implementation of the Medical camps in various communities in Dar es Salaam Region and Pwani. This includes Fundraising coordinating with local government leaders and school leaders in serving the school children and their families. This has included lobbying for Menstrual Hygiene Management education and reusable sanitary pads distribution to adolescent girls. I am currently working full time as a Co-founder and Director of the organisation called Afya Pamoja. It is Public Health NGO that works with the Government in Improving the quality of healthcare through Digital patient feedback in Tanzania.
I have made a routine of making sure I have one day in a week which is Saturday. I have time to myself by doing something fun with friends and getting more than eight hours sleep on that one day in a week, as well as not doing any work related activity.

My current work gives me a responsibility to fundraise, manage people, partner with developing organisations and government officials. I had to lead the registration of our organisation and secure the Memorandum of Understanding with the two ministries of Health and Local Government Authorities. The partnership enabled us to work directly with the government health facilities. There were a lot of challenges and I had to learn a lot of government policies and guidelines for a successful establishment of our organisation. We currently have over 10 employees and over one thousand mothers using our services in one region.

I was once found to be anaemic when I was still a medical student. The reason was found to be poor eating habits and I have had heavy flows during menstruation. I had different symptoms like dizziness and headaches which I had ignored. I later on was able to share my experience and create awareness among young girls on importance of good nutrition and show how at risk as girls and young women we are to Iron Deficiency anaemia.

I have co-founded an organisation that aims at making the voices of the citizen’s at the heart of decision making especially in the Public health system of Tanzania and hopefully Africa. The organisation has made room for employment for young people to showcase their skills but also supports the community in giving feedback to improve the quality of healthcare services.

Among the co-founders of Afya Pamoja I am the only female. I have led with government engagement as well as leading the public health engagement with the government and funders. I have learnt to be patient bold and be proud of my skills in the team that has helped in the growth of the organisation. It has required me to always read, learn the environment and make sure I am understood when communicating but also mentoring young people in the organisation especially females for professional development.

I am blessed to have had a chance to mentor girls in my association. At different times and regions they have been amazing through different programmes like Girl Powered Nutrition the girls have been able to implement amazing projects and reached the community in creative and bold ways. An example is Valentine a GPN advocacy champion who just recently coordinated an event in her region with my support from a distance on creating awareness on Girls nutrition and invited the Minister and Member of Parliament who promised to support and work with Girl Guides.

I have successfully managed to register our organisation and secure the Memorandum of Understanding with the Ministry of Health of Tanzania. I had to learn, consult different people and be comfortable in learning and adapting the required ways of working with the government for a successful programme.

I once stayed with my friends family in which after a meal everyone had to thank the father, mother, elder brother and elder sisters in order. This was different from my family culture. So I later on had to adapt and thank everyone after a meal just as the family tradition. In my family you would thank only who prepared the meal.

I have successfully co-founded an organisation called Afya Pamoja that gives digital patient feedback services. The aim is strengthening the healthcare system of Tanzania through digital patient feedback.

I believe in making sure everyone has to receive the best healthcare service irrespective of their background. This is the inspiration behind Afya Pamoja where I wanted healthcare service users to be part of improving the quality of care. My target was public health facilities especially Primary Health care facilities where over 80 percent of Tanzanians use those services.

Personal Statement
Why would you like to become a member of the World Board, and how do you feel you can contribute to the work of WAGGGS?

I have over 23 years of experience in Girl Guiding and have held various leadership positions within my member organisation. These include being the National Young Leaders’ leader, team leader- Plastic Tide Turners Project and currently serving as the Assistant Chief Commissioner, chair of the Membership Sub-Committee of the Executive Committee. I bring a unique blend of skills and expertise that can contribute to the growth and success of the guiding movement.

As a member of the national board in my home country, I have developed a deep understanding of leadership principles and practices that have been invaluable in both my personal and professional life. I have been able to apply these skills in various capacities, from working with girls and young women to developing programmes and initiatives that have had a positive impact on my local community.

I am a strategic thinker with a passion for driving change and finding innovative solutions to complex problems. I bring a wealth of experience and knowledge which I believe will make a positive contribution to the work of WAGGGS in its endeavor to achieve its mission.

I am both confident and excited about this opportunity to further my volunteer work alongside other dedicated individuals who share my passion for girl guiding and the empowerment of girls and young women. I am committed to contributing my time, energy, and expertise to help WAGGGS achieve its goals and to make a positive difference in the lives of girls and young women around the world.
Skills and experience

Throughout my time in Girl Guiding, I have honed my leadership skills, working with girls and young women at both the local and national levels. As a member of the Technical Advisory Sub-committee of the national board in my home country, I was responsible for developing programmes and initiatives including the new KGGA programme books launched in 2022. In this role, I gained a deep understanding of the importance of leadership in promoting positive change and growth, both within the girl guiding movement and in the wider community.

In addition to my experience in girl guiding, I am a registered architect by profession, and I bring a strong track record of strategic thinking and problem-solving. I have a passion for finding innovative solutions to complex problems, and risk management and I am always seeking new and creative ways to drive change. In addition, I have skills and experience in conducting scientific research to collect data that inform development work within my country. This, combined with my ability to work effectively with diverse groups of people, makes me an ideal candidate for the board position.

I am also committed to continuous learning and personal growth. I have pursued various training and professional development opportunities in recent years, which have helped me to expand my skills and knowledge in areas such as program development, financial management, and community engagement. I believe that these skills, along with my experience in girl guiding, will enable me to make a positive contribution to WAGGGS and its mission.

In conclusion, I am confident that my experience and skills, along with my commitment to continuous learning and growth, make me an ideal candidate for the board position.
I often used to be overly self-critical, in especially when it came to meeting targets, both personal and in group collaborations. It caused me to feel discouraged and lazy. However, through practising a Reflective Mindset, I’ve learned to appreciate my efforts and be grateful for progress. This mindset has helped me to be more consistent in my habits and review my daily achievements with gratitude.

Working on menstrual hygiene management (MHM) issues affecting girls and women in Kenya has taught me the importance of considering diverse cultural, social, economic, technological, and physical environments. This understanding helps me address period stereotypes, increase access to MHM resources, and engage both boys and men in providing these necessities for girls and women in the community.

At the end of the day, I learnt the need to have a self-assessment to acknowledge how I responded to certain events, how I feel when something good or bad occurred or when someone responded to my actions in a particular way. This has helped me improve my mental health as I now am open to accepting my reactions as well as practising control in how I respond to events and/or people. This has helped me especially when receiving critique on design work, or submitting proposals for funding which at times are not successful.

Working on various projects especially in a social setup has taught me the need to be open to collaborating with colleagues, friends, and family. E.g., working on coming up with the PTTC project report at the end of the implementation phase was quite tasking and I requested the staff and volunteers to assist, and we got the evaluation done and reports submitted.

As a woman in a male-dominated field in Kenya, I have learned the importance of advocating for myself to have a seat at the table and have my opinions heard and respected. Knowing my rights and how to make my voice heard has helped me to earn the recognition and respect I deserve.

Prior to visiting an area where a certain project will take place, I try to do some research to prepare in advance. E.g., in 2017 and 2022, before visiting Kajiado to implement a menstrual hygiene activity, I had to research on the local leaders and learn how the community decides on engaging a non-community members/organisation. This heavily impacted the success of the event.

Coming up with quick and accessible resources when delivering various programs in the various contexts within the country. E.g., translating and customizing the Plastic Tide Turners Challenges (PTTC) to meet the regions where Swahili is the main language used/coastal regions/highland landlocked regions.

Guiding has instilled in me a habit of listening to your core being and respecting other people’s values, which may not necessarily be the same as yours. This enables me to make clear decisions that are in line with what I stand for and also respect other people’s values as well.

I promise to do my best if elected to the World Board, I am a team player, I am good and very approachable, I am good in communication, I have very good experience in guiding, started guiding since brownie stage.

I have passion to dream act and lead.
I make balanced informed decisions and am good in conflict resolution;
I accept the majority decision and am a team player. I am very prepared to work in any environment. I am a true volunteer, most of the time I use my own resources when need arises. I am good and love charity work in my MO and even other functions in my own country.
I welcome accountability as an opportunity not as a burden.
In guiding a leader is allowed to take risks when the need arises, yes I am a risk taker I am a good planner for any event and good in preparation of meetings.
I am very creative. I love putting girls in the lead.
I am the international commissioner in my MO, I have very good networking skills, I contribute to my MO in winning donor confidence by creating many activities, during camping and trainings.

I am Free Being Me trainer and I am able to recruit new members through this programme. I am able to think critically, creative and I am strategic in doing things. I have a good skill in listening and learning from others, and am good in appreciating diversity. I have general knowledge of challenges and opportunities facing girls and young women.

I have good knowledge of WAGGGS core values and I use them mostly when introducing girl guiding. I have a collaborative approach, I am able to work effectively. I am very culturally sensitive and possess the ability to work in global and multicultural context. I had this experience in Sangam, Oman, South Africa, Zambia, Tanzania and Kenya, where we had MOs from different cultures and different girl guides for a week.

I am very good in representing WAGGGS both outside inside the Girl guiding and Girl scouting movement. I represented in Zambia at a joint camp. I participated in the Oman forum, I was a participant in Kusafiri in South Africa, where I was trained on Free Being Me.

I also represented my MO in Africa Regional Meeting in Kenya and Tanzania, I co-facilitated training on the Leadership Model online for Nigeria and Lesotho, and am awaiting Tanzania to confirm the date.

I am very committed to make all MOs practise the Leadership Model, so that we change the mind-sets. I am able to understand the WAGGGS mission, educational methods and leadership model.

I reintroduced Malawi Girl Guides, with only one unit, I am proud that it is one of the largest MOs with huge membership.

I managed to network with UN: right now my MO has projects with UNFPA, FAO-UN, UN-WOMEN and UNICEF and we have donor confidence. I managed to network my MO with the government and other stakeholders. I managed to get information from other MOs about YESS program, it was not very functional in Malawi. I am happy that it has made our girls to be very confident and it has made our MO to have new young girls and women to join the movement and some even hold posts in the national board.

I am very independent and have the ability to challenge constructively.

Outside the established girl guiding, I managed to introduce it in churches and because of the confidence I gained from Free Being Me, sometimes the governments would ask for my services.

Outside guiding, since I am working with UN, I go out to do HIV mainstreaming and sometimes I go for facilitation in other areas.

I am able to use technology as means of communication and collaborate even using email, Whatsapp, zoom meeting and trainings. I have that willingness to learn new skills and to participate in up-skilling opportunities. I am willing to and able to give time if picked as member of the World Board. I am good in communicating with English as a working language, both verbally and in writing. I am willing to shape and advise the future of the organisation, very willing to accept the legal duties and to be responsible in my role as WAGGGS Board member.

I am good in influencing skills and advocacy. In my MO, I assisted to advocate for raising marriage age and it passed in the parliament.

I am good in facilitation, and good in identifying the needs of non-formal education.

I will make sure all MOs have the capacity to retain and recruit members, and will also enhance fundraising and more of resource mobilization.

I will empower and try to identify a team of resource mobilizers so the movement will function to its best capacity.

I will make sure we monitor annual reports from all MOs and encourage global meetings mostly for our girls and young women as well as networking for chief commissioners and international commissioners.

I will make sure we introduce active trefoil guilds in all MOs for them to assist young generations and ensure the sustainability of the organisation.

I will make strong networking among MOs and make sure girls and young women love the movement and take the lead.

I promise to do my best, to be prepared to take the lead and look wide.

Personal Statement

Why would you like to become a member of the World Board, and how do you feel you can contribute to the work of WAGGGS?

When I tell my peers what I do in guiding they are often baffled. 5 years of board experience in an organisation with 37,000 members and responsibility of a £5 M budget at the age of 25 is far from anything they have tried. This is only possible due to my engagement in the guiding and scouting movement.

WAGGGS is a unique organisation in focusing on building young women’s capacity to lead and take responsibility by helping them identify issues and develop the skills to be the change. Participating in the 2022 JLS Seminar, I experienced how inspiring girls from all over the world identified obstacles regarding female leadership and acted upon them.

As a member of the world board, I will work to ensure that WAGGGS keeps developing young women for at least 100 more years. To ensure a sustainable future for WAGGGS, we need to use the three dimensions of sustainable development as follows:

1. Economically: WAGGGS needs sustainable economy and financial governance structures. As a world board member, I will balance investments in engaging activities for all members and safeguarding our finances to ensure equal opportunities for future generations.

2. Socially: As a world board member, I will ensure that all girls experience being taken seriously and that their perspectives matter in creating a sustainable society. This entails continuous focus on making WAGGGS a girl-led movement. I will make it more accessible to volunteer with WAGGGS and thereby create a pipeline of brilliant women to develop the movement.

3. Environmentally: Demands for environmental sustainability will increase in coming years - both from the outside world and youth members. As guides we have a responsibility to be front-runners. As a world board member, I will mainstream work with environmental sustainability - both in terms of programme and conduct - in MOs and at global level.
I would be proud to make my skills and experience available in making WAGGGS sustainable economically, socially and environmentally as follows.

Economic
- Financial Management
  I have partaken in safeguarding the economy and ensuring sustainable financing and realistic budgeting both in the national federation and my component association. This has given me experience in strengthening finances with the least negative impact on the opportunities offered to members. When I joined both boards there were a continuous unsustainable draw on the reserves due to excess expenditures, relying on restricted funding and optimistic budgeting – much like the situation WAGGGS faces at the moment. During the past years I have partaken in overturning the bad tendencies and ensuring robust finances.

- Governance
  As a board member I have been part of implementing a project organisational structure solving emerging governance issues such as stabilising permanent functions. I have further co-led a reorganisation of the governance structure in the national federation enabling flexible and efficient decision-making.

Studying Political Communication and Management I have gained skills in navigating shifting contexts and complex organisations finding solutions that encompass different perspectives. Skills I find useful in leading an organisation comprised of passionate volunteers that all bring their priorities and perspectives to the table.

- Strategy Development
  I co-chaired the development of my MO’s eight-year overall strategy setting the strategic direction for the entire organisation. This included orchestrating a process engaging guides at all levels. I have further set direction through strategies on e.g. growth and adults in scouting and guiding.

Social
- Staff and Volunteer Management
  As a board member I focus on ensuring that national volunteers are supported in delivering their appointed tasks, develop adequate skills and securing a pipeline. I have represented the board in the appointment of two Secretary Generals and led the onboarding of Heads of Secretariat providing insight to the intersection of staff and volunteers. Working with volunteers and staff I draw on my degree in organisational psychology including knowledge on good governance, efficient decision-making, teamwork and motivation.

- Youth Inclusion
  At age 19 I was elected as a youth board member. I have experienced first-hand how my perspectives have been useful emphasising how youth consultation can improve strategic decision-making.

Skills and experience

I am part of WAGGGs’s Capacity Building Core Mission Team, working with Girl-led advocacy. Here, I draw on my own experience i.e. developing the youth consultation activity pack for the International Day of the Girl 2022 and facilitating sessions at the Scout and Guide Academy. It is inspiring to see how the material improves youth inclusion and empowerment underscoring the importance of girl-led activities.

- External Relations and Partnerships
  In the national federation I headed external relations and partnerships with e.g., UNICEF Denmark, providing experience with possibilities and dilemmas in partnerships. I have collaborated with youth organisations such as WOSM learning to benefit from synergies while retaining differences. From representing my MO externally I have gathered new perspectives on guiding as well as positioned my MO as an important stakeholder.

- WAGGGS Leadership Mindsets and Barriers to Female Leadership
  Through volunteering at Global Level and participating at JLS 2022 I have worked with WAGGGS Leadership Model improving my own leadership skills. JLS increased my awareness of how gender differences affect girls across the world, making my academic knowledge of gender biases and female leadership tangible and real. It further broadened my understanding of barriers to leadership worldwide underscoring the importance of WAGGGS in inspiring leadership skills in young women.

- Communication
  As a board member I have experienced how strong communication is essential in creating a common direction, commitment and alignment. Through my professional career I have gained skills in communicating complex messages including issues of sustainability. I put these skills to use when implementing strategic decisions e.g., restructuring of adults in guiding where the right framing and engagement of relevant stakeholders provided for a smooth implementation.

Environmental
- Sustainable Conduct
  My MO is developing a sustainability strategy where I partake in translating sustainable conduct to a guiding context. This involves scoping the impact of operations, considering local challenges and inviting volunteers to discuss the balance of comfort and reduction.

In a professional context, I worked with environmental impact of large organisations with diverse membership in the Sustainability Department at The University of Copenhagen. This included managing emerging challenges and dilemmas in inspiring sustainable conduct across different departments.

- SDGs and the NGO Sector
  Approaching 2030 the SDGs will be an important agenda to WAGGGS. I have worked with the SDGs professionally advocating for change as well as considering how to put them to play in a guiding context. Working with sectoral collaboration on the SDG’s with an NGO platform I have professional experience from civil society and the NGO sector which I find useful as a board member in an international NGO.
Leaders of the Movement...

Treating myself kindly involves taking time off to reload. This involves long walks in nature, going for a run or simply a series night with my roomies watching our current common series (Peaky Blinders at the moment) with my knitwear close at hand. The essential thing is to get time to reset my head - and to have fun.

While volunteering at the African Regional Conference there was a booth exposing the initiatives on menstrual hygiene. At first I found this to be a bit odd in a guiding context, but eventually I asked about the initiative. I learned that guides in Africa provide education in menstrual hygiene as part of the activities simply because it is not part of the curriculum in school as it is in Denmark. This has broadened my understanding of the impact of guiding internationally and why activities might differ within different contexts.

During the first months as a board member in my MO, I withheld my opinions as I believed everyone had similar ideas. I also felt intimidated by some of the more experienced members, who started every argument referring to past events. It could be very frustrating - especially when I felt that decisions might affect stakeholders that were not mentioned in the discussion. Eventually I realised that when I feel frustrated, it is often because my input is not reflected in the discussion. By now I know that by trusting my gut feeling and participating actively I contribute with unique perspectives.

At the online JLS in 2022 the participants had varying levels of accessibility to the internet. In my patrol we struggled with finding time slots for patrol time as everyone was based in different time zones. Eventually we had an open discussion on the topic with our mentor that resulted in a solution where we paired up as buddies and had bilateral chats over WhatsApp. This enabled a more fluent conversation and sparring despite time zones and internet connectivity.

Whenever I write an email, I always delete the phrases “I think” and “might be” to appear less insecure. By doing this, I try to challenge the common expectation that women are less aggressive and more approachable and nicer in their approach, thus appearing less confident and competent.

As a trainer at a leadership course, I once had a girl with dyslexia in my patrol. In an exercise the guides had to read different values aloud and consider their meaning. The girl suddenly started crying as she could not do it. Together with the rest of the patrol we managed to solve the task in a way where she could participate equally through the assistance of the others. Afterwards she told me this was the first time she realised that her dyslexia did not have to stand in her way of fulfilling her ambitions.

Serving on the board of the national federation I was frustrated as I did not understand the opinion of some of the other board members concerning the organisation of our national jamboree. Nonetheless I decided to take a step back and curiously ask one of them the reason for his opinion rather than arguing or opposing his ideas. It turned out his opinion originated in a fundamentally different organisational culture. This insight enabled us to facilitate a change process where the different perspectives were acknowledged.

I am by nature a very talkative person and like to discuss differing opinions. As a newly elected board member I visited one of our regions, where they were extremely critical towards the conduct of the board. In the beginning I tried to argue with their criticism, but gradually realised that it did not make any difference. Then I adapted to the context by listening and acknowledging their thoughts rather than talking. This turned out to be very instructive for both parties and informed our following decisions on the board along with giving them an experience of being acknowledged.

In guiding we provide an opportunity for youth to gain positive experiences with engaging in democratic processes scaffolding engagement outside of guiding. At one point we found that Youth Members in my MO where not posing motions at the General Assembly (GA). To facilitate engagement I set up a youth group and encouraged them to pose motions. We facilitated a workshop where they wrote of motions along with considering the impact of guiding internationally and why activities might differ within different contexts.

The wellbeing of other people is an essential value to me. This entails ensuring that all parties find their opinions reflected in decisions. One decision that challenged this was during an organisational restructuring where the political level and the executing level did not agree on the best way to govern. I found myself unable to agree with the suggested solution at the political level as it neglected the opinion of some executing volunteers. I then met with the leader of the board and posed motions. We facilitated a workshop where they wrote of motions along with considering the impact of guiding internationally and why activities might differ within different contexts.

Personal Statement
Why would you like to become a member of the World Board, and how do you feel you can contribute to the work of WAGGGS?

A question which has often bothered me is: how do we move forward when we face discrimination at the starting line itself? My sole mission in life is to follow the Gandhian ideology of love all, serve all. I strive to bring light to the challenges of those who are never heard and most empowering them with resources. "Change begins with education" - my journey started as the founding member and Trustee of Manav Sadhana, an NGO working towards education accessibility programs for less privileged children and women. Sustainable economies highly rely on empowered women and to enable women to be the catalyst of sustainable economic and social change to strengthen their families and positively impact their communities, I founded a non-profit organization, "Gramshree" which aimed to provide income generation opportunities by leveraging campaigns, community holdings and breaking the glass ceiling. The goal was to support rural women financial self-dependency and literacy. Be it catastrophe clad areas that needed rehabilitation or preserving rural Indian women’s tradition of weaving, I have always turned challenges into opportunities. Through my next venture Craft roots, we have taken critical decisions which have turned adversities into income generation opportunities for segments of women who were denied the basic rights. We have been recognized for all the efforts that have brought changes to the ground level of children and women welfare, advocacy, literacy, finance, and empowerment. I resonate with WAGGGS' vision of leading and shaping a world of equal opportunity, inclusivity and bridging the gaps through awareness, education, and empowerment with careful strategic and policy development approach. Given the rich endeavors in numerous fields with a clear conscience of serving and uplifting, this role will only help expand the reach to every woman, children across the world.
Skills and experience

Strategy and advocacy:
Built around the core idea of “Be the change you wish to see in the world!”, my life journey is the reflection of my aspiration and desire to catalyze social change through sustainable means of empowering women through literacy and financial self-dependency. I have been the pillar and driving force of many organizations enabling different sections of society like Manav Sadhana, Gramshree, Craftroots and many other campaigns. With background in MBA from NIRMA University, I have put my entrepreneurial and strategic management skills into social service to garner a meaningful outcome for the targeted segments of society. Through my efforts, women have gained financial literacy and vocational trainings to turn their limitations into opportunities.

Crisis management and effective decision making:
In 2001, after a catastrophic earthquake that hampered thousands of lives, derailed the economy and education especially among women and children, I spent one year in a remote village in Kutchh in Gujarat. We engaged in rehabilitation activities like awareness programs, sanitation activities, rebuilding destroyed villages, education for the less privileged etc. I received the ‘Gujarat Gaurav’ Award for recognizing my outstanding rehabilitation work in Kutchh.

Inclusive advocacy:
With the goal to revive, preserve and promote the craft traditions of India and to empower the handicraft artisans from across the country, I founded Craftroots in 2010 with a thought to convert the rural Indian women-led tradition of weaving into a source of livelihood. Craftroots is a unique platform that brings together academicians, designers, volunteers, students, organizations and artisans for the development of the best of the craftsmanship from across India.

Centered around core philosophy of “Small is beautiful”, in the last 7 years Craftroots has empowered directly and indirectly more than 25000 artisans across 50 organizations, engaged hundreds of students and volunteers to benefit rural artisans, organized more than 25 exhibitions and has worked with more than 45 various craft forms. I received prestigious ‘Sakhi Shakti’ award for my contribution in the field of handicraft development with underprivileged women and artisans.

Learning and developing others:
In 1990, with the aim to serve the underprivileged children, I founded a non-profit organization Manav Sadhana from a quiet corner of the Gandhi Ashram in Ahmedabad, Gujarat. The philosophy of the NGO was based on the phrase “love all-serve all”. Me and my 2 other co-founders from relevant backgrounds have helped Manav Sadhana serves more than 8000 less privileged children and women through 35 different projects.

Inclusive and structural development:
To enable women to be the catalyst of sustainable economic and social change in order to strengthen their families and positively impact their communities, in 1995, I founded a non-profit organization Gramshree. With ground level research, government schemes, private funding, local marketing and top to bottom networking, in the last 20 years, Gramshree has trained hundreds of women in income generation activities such as tailoring, bag making, embroidery, leather work etc and provided sustainable income generation opportunities. More than 15,000 women have benefited through activities such as medical camps, health and sanitation awareness programs, skill trainings, self-defense trainings and more. I was honored with the prestigious ‘All Grassroots Women of the Decade Achievers’ Award for my commitment towards sustaining the lives of many women and children in Ahmedabad by Assocham Ladies League (ALL).

Marketing and Funding:
Conceptualizing with an aim of cultural diversity and inclusivity of local art traction and representation, I created first of its kind city festival in India “Sabarmati Festival” with the aim to celebrate the cultural diversity and inclusiveness of Ahmedabad. Sabarmati Festival is a month long cultural extravaganza organized with a vision to create a moment of joy and pride for each and every citizen of Ahmedabad belonging to any and every walk of life. The festival created a record by giving stage to more than 10000 artists including Pre-Events and Main Events in its first edition. The festival has achieved a footfall of approximate 2 Million people over two editions through rigorous marketing on all medium and financial capability building across individual contributors, sponsors and organizations.

I feel honored to have received the prestigious Rajiv Gandhi Manav Seva Award in 2008 for my engagements with the grassroots community and National Youth Camp Award by Gangpat University and Sneh Foundation for community upliftment.

Currently, with my role as a co-chairperson in social responsibility committee of GCCI (Gujarat Chamber of Commerce and Industry), I collaborate with government officials, policy developers and strategists to bring forth the challenges of less privileged sections of society to discussion forums with facts and figures from my ground work as evidence to support the cause of bringing change at all levels of governance.

I stepped in the role as Deputy International Commissioner–Guides with Bharat Scouts and Guides which provides me an edge to widen the scope of voicing these concerns and amplify the efforts.
Leaders of the Movement...

Self-awareness and mindfulness are essentials for self-love. Practices like Vippasayana, retreats have been powerful spaces to enable inner transformation. This shift inside has helped add more value to those done outside.

Power of collective is more than that of an individual. Spaces like Circle of sharing has enabled understand more about perceptions and values that emerge out of it.

Self-love has been an essential part of my journey. Spiritual connect has enabled understand own feelings and learn from experiences. This has been an enabler in understanding the feeling of others as well.

Co-creation of collective’s Circle of Sharing, Awakin, Seva Café, Moved by Love have given space for people to hold each other and enable collective transformation.

Participative approaches like the Bindi Project have helped bridge the gaps. Such spaces lead through empathy and compassion which help cure the gaps.

Approach of Identify, Engage and Enable has empowered several girls as leaders. Spaces of Volunteerism, Circle of Sharing and Acts of Kindness etc. has helped boost the leadership in girls.

Looking at perceptions of both the sides and getting into the depth of the circumstances is important to understand the full picture. It’s important to listen to everyone and not take one sided decision.

Empathy is an important virtue which helps understand the individuality of an individual and then act accordingly.

Each individual is unique and for me innovation means transformation on each human being through different approaches. Transformation of lives through spaces like volunteerism, one to one connect, daily practices, mentorship have been catalyst in creating impact in life of individuals and the community.

Love, Compassion and Gratitude are core values in my journey and have influenced choices in my life.

Nominated by: Girl Guides of Canada

Personal Statement
Why would you like to become a member of the World Board, and how do you feel you can contribute to the work of WAGGGS?

I have been a Girl Guide since I was 10 years old and have held the values of our movement as my own. I know that my experience as a girl empowered me to break glass ceilings in my work life and enabled me to contribute to both empowering girls and the sustainability of Girl Guides of Canada (GGC) over many years. Empowering girls through our movement is critical to societal development and to impact change for a better world.

I have had the opportunity to serve Girl Guides of Canada (GGC) in a wide range of roles including as (National) Chief Commissioner/Chair of the Board. Regarding WAGGGS, I have been a member of the Vibrant Regions Working Group, Member of WAGGGS Future Governance Model working group, and now a member of the Governance Committee of the World Board.

I will bring my expertise in the fields of governance, strategic planning, financial oversight, marketing and communications, and stewardship as a member of the World Board. I bring a unique set of skills, and proven leadership in driving organizational innovation, and sustainability in both my business career and Girl Guides. My drive to meet goals in a collaborative manner in an intergenerational context will result in creative solutions.

As Chief Commissioner/Chair I championed an ambitious Diversity, Equity, & Inclusion (D,E, &I) program which is an essential part of our strategic plan. I continue to champion D, E, & I as a workshop facilitator.

I fully embrace the WAGGGS Leadership Mindsets. This approach is part of our leadership model for both girls and adults at GGC. I remain in touch with girls and their world, as a local unit Guider(leader).

I see this as a rare opportunity to serve our worldwide movement. Furthering the empowerment of girls through ensuring WAGGGS long-term sustainability serving the wide variety of Member Organizations from around the world.
Skills and experience

The experience I will bring to the World Board (WB), comes from a more than 20-year career with VIA Rail Canada (Canada’s Passenger Rail Network), my volunteer roles within Girl Guides of Canada (GGC), and WAGGGS. (Note: VIA Rail Canada serves 400+ communities, carries 5 million passengers and has revenues of $411 million annually.)

In my career with VIA Rail Canada, I held a wide variety of senior management positions (6) including:
  • Director, Strategic Planning,
  • Director, Product Marketing
  • Director, Marketing

I was responsible over the course of my career for operating budgets of more than $50 million CAD and revenue budgets of $200 million CAD. Over half of my career covered all facets of marketing including marketing research and marketing strategy. This included the launch of VIA Rail’s national customer retention program named VIA Preference. During my tenure, VIA Rail was threatened with extinction. I worked with a team charged with turning around the situation with innovative sustainable changes. We played a strategic role, reimagining a renewed passenger service including the development of a new mission and vision. This initiative led to a complete turnaround. I went on to lead the marketing implementation team. I led a railway operations team to create a new sustainable model of railway operating practice that resulted in an improvement of customer service and a savings of $15 million CAD. As Marketing Director, I participated in international Tourism Canada events meeting with and promoting VIA Rail services to tourism operators from around the world.

I bring extensive experience in governance, oversight, and innovation particularly in the Guiding context. I have held several senior positions in GGC including the following:
  • Chief Commissioner/Chair of the Board 2015-2018.
  • Provincial Commissioner, Quebec – 2010-2014.
  • Board Director, 2007-2010 and Chair, Programming Committee of the Board.

Currently, I work as Provincial Training Adviser (Quebec) and a Guider for a Guide unit in my community.

During my term as Chief Commissioner/Chair of the Board, I led the Board and the Provincial Commissioners in the creation of sustainable transformative change within GGC. This work included a new strategic direction, introducing research based new mission and vision. The implementation saw the launch of a completely web-based programming platform, ‘Girls First’ is based on girls’ expectations, and needs. Girls First supports and reinforces empowering girls. It supports GGC to become a girl led movement responding to girls evolving needs and opportunities. We also undertook re-structuring of the Board to improve effectiveness. The changes included the introduction of specific portfolios to ensure a focus on key objectives, and accountability. We introduced our first National Youth Council with a Board member under 25 responsible for this portfolio. We moved forward with an ambitious D, E, & I program. It focuses on education and starting with active outreach to the Indigenous communities of Canada. This resulted in the creation of the GGC National Indigenous Advisory Council whose members are young Indigenous women. They actively guide GGC determining next steps and accountability regarding indigenous communities.

As Quebec Provincial Commissioner, working with the Provincial Council, we were able to bring our finances into a stable situation, improve the overall satisfaction of parents’ evaluation of their daughter’s experience, and that of our volunteers. New engagement opportunities for our senior branches (age 12-18) were launched.

As Chair, Programming Committee of the GGC Board, I was able to obtain agreement from the Board to undertake extensive research into girls’ attitudes and issues, considering alternate approaches to the programming model of the day.

For WAGGGS, I have been a member of the Vibrant Regions Working Group (VRWG - 2018/ 2019). I had the opportunity to learn about the regional committees, their work and the challenges they face. This led to the development of the current Terms of Reference for the Regional Committees. Currently, I am a member of the Governance Committee. Through my work on the Governance Committee and the Future Governance Model working group (2019), I have come to understand more greatly the governance framework and gained insight into some of the governance, strategic, and sustainability challenges. I am currently leading a project to understand the implementation of the Vibrant Regions recommendations.

My other experiences with WAGGGS include the following.
  • World Conference – Delhi – 2017 – Lead Delegate
  • World Conference – Hong Kong – 2014 - Chair of the Board – Elect – Delegate
  • Member of OB-PS (since 2017)
  • Participation in programmes at four World Centres and orientation for WAGGGS Global Working Groups.

My experience in working at the global level has enhanced; my understanding of how WAGGGS works, what it means to work in a global context, insight into the different MO structures, ways of working, and sustainability challenges. I have had the opportunity to learn about the regional committees, their work, and the challenges that these committees face.
Leaders of the Movement...

As a current local Guide Guider (Leader), I work with girls to support them in the direction they wish to pursue. Allowing girls to express themselves in the ways that suit them best, empowering them to ‘do their best’ and ‘be true to themselves’. The introduction of the National Youth Council during my term as Chief Commissioner/Chair brought new perspectives and action plans responding to the needs and vision of our youth members. The Board was required to integrate their ideas going forward. Through putting the focus on girl(youth) led, the value of being in a girl(youth)-led organization and the opportunities it brings is clear.

I have always been a seeker of information, thrive on research materials, wish to understand the facts of a situation prior to making an evaluation or decision. In my various roles, I have sought to ensure that we had the best information available prior to making decisions. While some decisions may have to be made without ideal conditions, accessing the best information that is available is important. Determining a new vision and mission for GGC was such a journey during my tenure as Chair. We had to combine research data on girl’s needs, attitudes, experiences, and listening to our youth members allowed us to arrive at the new vision and mission.

Canada is a country with significant regional and multi-cultural variation. To work effectively and create trust, it was important to let those I was working with know that I understood their situation. I have lived and worked in all regions of Canada. As a result, I have been able to reach out to others to gain their trust and support. I believe that this helped create a sense of trust as we (GGC) moved forward with transformative change. Having travelled throughout the world with Girl Guides (Four World Centres and two World Conferences) and through extensive world travel, I have gained further understanding regarding the situation of others.

In undertaking the transformative work for Girl Guides of Canada, we invested in extensive research and challenged the model of programming and approach to girl leadership. We sought out various perspectives as part of the process as we had to re-think how we had been operating as a legacy organization. With the basis of research and input we were able to support transformative sustainable change and make decisions that would otherwise not have been made. Change is difficult, it is even more difficult if there is not a foundation of information and a variety of inputs to support change.

I value fairness, respect for others, inclusivity, and finding the right balance to achieve positive outcomes with creative solutions. It is essential to exercise ones’ values in making choices. Given that empowering girls is central to our movement, will the decision that needs to be made meet the test? As Chief Commissioner/Chair I needed to demonstrate my values as we moved through planning and implementing transformative sustainable change. The trust I had built through practicing my values helped build support for the new direction and gain approval for change on a large scale.

I often must remind myself to set realistic expectations for myself given the circumstances I find myself in. I am an achievement-oriented person and try to take on roles that will allow me a sense of satisfaction and success. I make sure that I take time to travel and get a break, while fulfilling my duties for whatever role I take on with great energy.

I am the grandmother of biracial grandchildren. I have become very aware of how the colour of their skin impacts their lives. I have spent considerable time learning about the world that they experience, the impacts of institutional racism and unconscious bias. I work diligently to try and understand a variety of perspectives when working as team member or lead. As Chief Commissioner/Chair I brought focus to the need to build our relationship with Indigenous communities. It was important that this work was led by indigenous members and reflects their needs. Only in this way could GGC move forward in a constructive and effective manner.

Across my working and Guiding career, I have worked with people in a wide variety of situations, I have learned to listen, observe, and adjust my behaviours to meet the situation I find myself in. I have had to adjust my management approach with staff and volunteers understanding that my drive to achieve is not the same as most and to adjust my expectations accordingly.

As Chair of the Board, I worked to ensure that all voices were heard throughout each discussion and that all views were met with respect. I worked on a one-on-one basis during the year to make sure that each Board member was comfortable with their role, and that they were receiving the support they needed to succeed. With regards to WAGGGS working groups and committees I have participated in; I always focus on creating collaborative working relationships.

Early on, I learned I would have to stand up for myself and others. By 12, I became an advocate for girls and women’s rights. In my career in a male dominated industry, I challenged the stereotypes of women in the workplace. It was important for me to help lead the way, challenging old perspectives and moving forward regardless of negative attitudes. I also recognise that boys and men are also finding themselves in a ‘new world’ of changing roles and expectations. I am very aware of gender fluidity, and we need to be open to new perspectives in this space.

Personal Statement
Why would you like to become a member of the World Board, and how do you feel you can contribute to the work of WAGGGS?

At the age of nine, I started my journey as a brownie. Through guiding, I started my first advocacy in setting up a community library to eradicate social isolation, then I led national campaigns pushing for change at national, regional and international levels on wellbeing, discussing policies surrounding child marriage with local politicians, lobbying for youth representation in national boards and finally setting up the first youth led NGO guided by professionals in Malaysia, Mind Matters Network all while completing a double degree in medicine and medical sciences. Working alongside my sisters in guiding, I can vouch first hand, the impact guiding has on girls and young women when given the right guidance and opportunity to do so.

Further leveraging from my experience as a founder and director of a national youth led NGO, I believe as a member of the World Board I will be able to engage with stakeholders to further garner strategic partnerships for the organisation, provide a fresh perspective as a young women in governance and maximise the potential of using social media as a tool for change.

While the years of experience you receive from the nominees today may be equivalent to my age, I promise, I am the most willing to learn young woman in the room representing the voices of hundreds and thousands of girls hoping to be given a seat at the table so that many other young women can see that they too have a place in governance. After all, decisions about us should most definitely include us. It would be an honour to be a part of an organisation that empowers girls and gives them the confidence that the world wants to hear what they have to say despite their age, ethnicity and background--there is an inclusive safe space for all.
Skills and experience

Influencing skills and advocacy: Honoured to be two times Champion of the National Public Speaking Competition focused on the SDGs where one of them was focused on ending child marriage in Malaysia. Consequently, I was part of the campaign #NoBridesUnder18 and acted as an ambassador for Girl Guides Association Malaysia to speak to the Deputy Minister of Women in ending child marriage and creating equal opportunities for girls. I have also been awarded best delegate and best negotiator at the Asia World MUN in championing equity.

Marketing and communications, including social media: Lead the Covid Humanitarian Aid initiative which was 100% online (mainly through Instagram) in gathering volunteers, suppliers, identifying vulnerable communities and mobilising aid. Spearheaded a social media campaign #GGStayAtHomeChallenge to further reduce social isolation. I actively use my social media to share snippets of my life as a medical student while also being involved in advocacy as an effort to garner more interest from youth in volunteering.

Fund development and donor relations: Well-versed in stakeholder engagement, fund raising and budgeting, raised a substantial amount for the Covid Humanitarian Aid to mobilise resources to the most vulnerable community during the pandemic.

Research and development: Involved in the development of the #GGStayAtHomeChallenge booklet in 2020 under Girl Guides Association Malaysia, a national educational tool to raise awareness on the current pandemic and as an activity guide that promoted mindfulness among children as well as adolescence. The activity booklet received over 72,000 submissions, 250,000 engagements and was published on the WAGGGS website. I co-authored the Handbook on Youth Mental Health in 2021 which touches on the common mental health struggles of youth and resources to seek help, 2000 copies of the handbook were distributed for free in 2021 and 3000 more re-published for free distribution nationwide in Malaysia at the start of 2023 as an effort to improve mental health literacy in Malaysia.

Governance/Constitution: As the Equity Officer of the Postgraduate and Research Student Association, I represent the voices of thousands of students on some of the highest decision-making bodies such as the IDEA governance and the gender equity committee to ensure that the concerns of students are heard. Involved in the restructure and revamp of the postgraduate association with special focus on the advocacy arm.

Policy development: Headed the youth wing of the National Coalition of Mental Wellbeing in decriminalising suicide in Malaysia through talks, symposium and drafting till the issue was brought up to the senate. Drafted recommendations to be submitted to the Academic Board as part of the working group for the Royal Commission into Institutional Responses to child sexual abuse in Australia.

Identifying and facilitating the learning and development of others, including non-formal education: Developed and implemented a mental health literacy programme nationwide called You Are Precious which focuses on building young women as mental health advocates and peer supporters. The soft skills that the participants pick up aims to build their confidence and strengthen the support network. Programmes from Mind Matters Network reached over 2000 participants in the first year of establishment.

Organisational development: As the founder of Mind Matters Network, I started the organisation from scratch, coming up with a structure for the core team as well as the advisory board and then elected suitable candidates to fill up the posts. From there I developed the constitution and the working groups, I currently have 40 members who look into the daily operation of the organisation.

Digital transformation: Digitalisation of training and programme especially during the pandemic, the entire #GGStayAtHomeChallenge was conducted virtually and was a huge success. I run Mind Matters Network which is based in Malaysia from Australia, my core team comprises members from UK and Canada as well, the integration of borderless communication in management increases efficiency. I am well versed in basic coding and developed the website for the Malaysian World Mental Health Assembly.

External Relations/Government relations: I work closely with the Ministry of Youth and have represented the ministry alongside GGAM in regional and international conferences such as AUSCU, ECOSOC and the global youth summit, broadening my understanding on the working of these agencies both at national and international level. My background in medicine further supports my mental health advocacy work with the Ministry of Health, various NGOs in the mental health field and partner institutes under Mind Matters Network. Mind Matters Network has established close to 50 partnerships in the past year.
Leaders of the Movement...

I am a classical dancer and enjoy dancing. I went through formal training at the age of 7 and have continued to perform through university. Even as my schedule in advocacy and medical school got busier, dancing was something that I always allocated time for. It was my me time to reconnect with music and myself as I explored my creative side. I also enjoy music and play the piano. Due to my interest in performing arts, you would often find me at orchestras and live performances during the weekend. My love for art closely rivals my love for medicine, and this balance I have allows me a more holistic development.

Intersectional and intercultural dialogues provide a new perspective to issues we have. As the Equity officer, my portfolio comprises the international officer, Women’s officer, Wellness officer, Queer officer and Parent officer. In order to better understand the issues that arise in these portfolios, there needs to be patience, curiosity in wanting to know more and respect when there is a difference in opinion. More often than not, I learn more from my officers and students that come to see me. Instead of having a fixed mindset, allowing yourself to look beyond what is in front of you, listening to various opinions and then using sound judgement with no bias helps in making an informed decision.

As a young girl growing up I had big ideas and dreams, constantly asking myself why not instead of just why. Finding amazing mentors who believed in me and wanted to hear more to what I had to say made a whole lot of difference. Similarly, I want to be able to provide a similar platform for young women to have someone else they could look up to for advice and feedback. A safe space where they feel included and unafraid to share their thoughts, reflect and grow.

In any work we do, you are only as strong as your team. All the camps I have attended as Wellness officer, Queer officer, Parent officer. In order to better understand the issues that arise in these portfolios, there needs to be patience, curiosity in wanting to know more and respect when there is a difference in opinion. More often than not, I learn more from my officers and students that come to see me. Instead of having a fixed mindset, allowing yourself to look beyond what is in front of you, listening to various opinions and then using sound judgement with no bias helps in making an informed decision.

When I founded Mind Matters, a male was deputy. When we enter meetings, heads would turn his direction. Interesting that in a female dominated team, society continues to assume that he is head. As a young woman keen to pursue surgery I have first-hand seen these biases and I have also seen the work that is being put in to break down these barriers and the best way to do this is to have representation. Young girls who see this will know that there is a place for them not just at the table but at the head of the table.

Every girl is a leader, she has a voice and does not need someone else to speak on her behalf, all she needs is a mike and a platform to be heard. I strongly believe in empowering young women to unlock their potential, build their confidence and watch them shine. The you are precious initiative I led was fully run by Queen’s Guides aged 16-17 as facilitators, moderators and the IT team. Our girls can!

Before a decision is made, one needs to have sufficient knowledge about the issue through research and consultations with the parties involved to ensure that we are getting the full picture. Speaking to various parties with opposing views and separating your personal opinion from a particular topic at hand, will paint a clearer picture. A decision can then be made in a calm manner considering all the information at hand.

When I first took up my role as Equity officer, I was told to organise a First Nations event, mind you that was the first time I was in Australia and did not have any background on the subject. The first step was to understand the cultural and social background, researching more about previous events and then seeking advice from previous officers who have carried out similar events. Acknowledging my limitations on the subject matter and wanting to learn more while being happy to receive constructive feedback and work on myself, made the learning experience much more pleasant.

If there are 100 ways to do something, ask yourself if there could be a 101th way to do it. Looking at something from different angles and seeing what can be done better is usually the first step in innovation. Learning from what has already been done and looking at ways to improve is the key. The first mental health symposium was planned to be done face to face in less than 3 days due to covid it had to be moved online. Being flexible and ready to adapt enabled us to pull off the event with close to 500 participants online.

Early on in my advocacy I was taught the hard way that pleasing everyone was not a choice. Sometimes you are going to have to make hard decisions but at the end of the day knowing that I have done my best and that the choice would most certainly help the girls discover their own potential, then it is definitely worth it.

Personal Statement
Why would you like to become a member of the World Board, and how do you feel you can contribute to the work of WAGGGS?

The election experience in the 37th World Conference has given me a lot of courage and motivation to continue my contribution to the Movement. I feel grateful for being recognised for my competencies and skills, which I have continued to develop and are complemented by the additional experience I have gained through new capacities. Now, I am more passionate and committed than ever, and am ready to take the next step to contribute even more.

Among my new roles, I am particularly thrilled to be part of the MO Membership Fee Working Group (MFWG) and witness the outcomes it has accomplished. One of the goals I set two years ago was: carry on with the consultation with MOs as I firmly believed, and still believe, that two-way communication is the key to ensuring the Board and MOs work hand in hand to achieve the common vision. The consultation sessions organised by MFWG have successfully engaged many MOs and captured their concerns and opinions, followed by prompt discussions and decisions made by the World Board in the interest of the Movement. The whole experience has confirmed that I was in the right direction and equipped me for stepping up.

Furthermore, my involvement in WAGGGS as a CAT Mentors Assistant allowed me to practise my active listening and organisation skills in order to understand the needs of individual MOs and the complex and diverse Regional context, as well as seeing the big picture of the Movement. I have become more confident, adaptive and culturally sensitive while collaborating with volunteers and staff from across all five Regions.

I am prepared and committed to making the best use of my knowledge, leadership and skills for the effective work of the World Board.
Skills and experience

A willingness to participate in ongoing learning and development or upskilling opportunities is one of the essential personal qualities of being a World Board member and one that I am proud of. After the last World Conference, I continue to work on increasing my exposure to the governance and working of WAGGGS and its Regions. With the support of my MO and the encouragement from the Regional Committee, I took up the challenge of being the Chair of the 14th Asia Pacific Regional Conference. The Regional Conference is one of the key features of the governance system of the Region. During the Conference, key decisions concerning the Region and its MOs are made. When taking up the role, I was responsible for understanding and adopting the conference procedures, and working with MOs on the Proposed Motions and Proposed Amendments, during which I was able to put my governance knowledge and communication skills into practice and grow further.

In addition, my competency in articulating and demonstrating the WAGGGS mission, leadership model and educational methodology is further advanced through my ongoing engagement in programme design. After initiating the pilot leadership development programme in 2020, I collaborate with a group of young women to develop a nationwide leadership challenge programme for the members of my MO. The programme aims to empower any and every girl to become a leader through learning and practising the six leadership mindsets continuously with a series of workshops and community service project planning. Throughout the process, I, too, constantly practise the mindsets myself as I truly believe that it helps me work on the behaviours I need to fulfil my responsibilities, and I always put my beliefs into action.

Other skills, experiences and personal qualities that I can add to the Board include:

Governance/Constitutions: As the Young Representative on the National Board of my MO, I took part in decision-making for nationwide measures, including the formulation of the organisation's new vision in 2016. As the District Commissioner, I managed 2D Units, advised on funding application, recruitment and retention strategies, and reviewed financial reports.

Marketing and communications: I coordinated and edited social media posts for my MO in various occasions, including my very own election campaign at the 37th World Conference and International Day of the Girl. In my capacity as the Advisor for the World Thinking Day 2021 activity series of my MO, I gave advice to the group of young women committee members on how to strategise and create content to promote and increase the visibility of their activities.

Identifying and facilitating the learning and development of others: As a facilitator and assistant trainer for nearly 10 years, I continuously design and deliver in-person/online sessions for girls, young women and adults with diverse backgrounds, among them included over 300 adult volunteers who were trained to become unit leaders in my MO.

Research and Development; Data Analysis/Monitoring & Evaluation: During my three-year appointment as a senior research assistant at the University of Hong Kong, I devised both qualitative and quantitative tools to collect data from 20+ schools, 200+ teachers and 3,000+ students. I also analysed the data for making appropriate recommendations as well as monitoring and evaluating the effectiveness of the project. Research reports have been submitted to international journals and conferences and are currently under review.

Technology strategy/Digital Transformation: During the COVID-19 pandemic, I pioneered my MO’s first comprehensive virtual leadership programme with online platforms and interactive tools, which was highly appreciated by local girl guides and international participants from Italy, Japan, Libya, Nigeria and Ukraine. In my professional capacity at the University of Hong Kong, I introduced digital tools to teachers to facilitate change in the mathematics learning of multicultural and multilingual students.

Influencing skills and advocacy: After being appointed as the Approved Person of the World Board in 2021, I was honoured to be invited by different MOs to speak about my leadership and governance journey at their national events, whose target audiences were the young members of the MOs.

Crisis Management: In 2016, a total of 1,000 girl guides and girl scouts joined the Hong Kong Girl Guides Centenary International Camp, including 245 international participants from 15 MOs such as Canada, Denmark and Zimbabwe. While organising an international outdoor event of this scale, it is always a priority to prevent the participants from being exposed to emotional or physical risk and ensure that they are kept safe from harm. In my capacity as the Deputy Camp Commandant, I led the International and China Liaison Team to devise corresponding contingency plans for both during the camp and while the participants were staying with their host families.

Financial management: I worked closely with faculty members at the University and assisted in the resource allocation of government-funded research projects (budgeted £560,000 per year; for three consecutive years).
Leaders of the Movement...

Having adapted and localised global programmes and projects of WAGGGS for my MO, I found my interest in languages and translation. I applied for a Chinese-English translation programme and made time for attending the lectures twice a week. After completing the translation programme, I continue to develop my interest in languages and start taking French classes where I can take a break from work and my volunteering commitments, and immerse myself in another culture/world.

There used to be a lot of assumptions about the mathematics learning of non-Chinese speaking (NCS) students in Hong Kong. Some teachers thought that NCS students are weaker than their Chinese counterparts. Yet, according to the data collected and analysed by me and my co-workers at the University of Hong Kong, the major difference between NCS and Chinese students is their priority rather than their ability. I really enjoy challenging such stereotypes and presenting my findings to the teachers.

I keep a journal for reflections, especially when I take up a new role at work or in Guiding. For example, throughout the preparation, implementation and evaluation stages of the 14th Asia Pacific Regional Conference, I noted down my experiences, feelings and questions, and reflected on my practice. During my stay in Thailand, I started each day by reading what I had written the previous day and reminded myself to incorporate my learnings into my next decisions and actions.

When I was running for the World Board in 2021, I recruited a group of young women from my MO to be on my Election Support Team, providing a space for them to learn about WAGGGS and its governance. During our meetings, I invited them to share what they considered would work as campaign activities and how they would like to actualise their ideas instead of imposing my thoughts on them. I also created space for them to report their progress and discuss the issues arisen.

Being a facilitator at the Juliette Low Seminar continues to be one of the highlights in my Guiding journey. When my co-facilitators and I were planning the sessions, we aimed to empower the participants with the knowledge, skills and confidence to break down gender barriers to leadership. At the end of the last session, we invited the participants to write quotes to encourage themselves and the girls and young women around them. I believe that the quotes have become very powerful messages to support them in their leadership journey to achieve gender equality.

One of the core elements in Guiding is to provide space for girls to practise leadership. In my unit, I support patrol leaders to conduct patrol meetings with their fellow members for sharing their views on the unit or programmes. I then invite the patrol leaders to report their discussion to me and other unit leaders periodically. While having leaders’ meeting to confirm the details, we put our emphasis on the impact that the decisions can possibly bring to our girls before considering the operational aspects.

Before confirming to express my interest in running for the World Board again, I spoke to a friend of mine who was not involved in the Guiding community. I believe that it was as important as seeking advice from people who had similar experiences, which was what I did before, because it allowed me to hear from another perspective with a more objective assessment for making a sound decision.

In late 2022, I moved to another city and started a new journey of my life. As a transition, I began to work in a completely different field. Despite being in an unfamiliar context, I actively engage in the social activities organised by my colleagues, carefully observe and thoroughly reflect on my own behaviour. I also adjust my communication styles depending on the person I am interacting with.

In Hong Kong, very few mathematics teachers are aware of the potential benefits of adopting language learning strategies in their lessons, holding the view that students’ language development should be addressed solely by the language teachers. Seeing that, I boldly presented my proposal with literature support to my project leader and obtained his approval to collaborate with a few schools to use storytelling in mathematics lessons. Storytelling was deemed to be less common in Hong Kong classrooms but the feedback from the participating teachers and students was very positive.

I am still keeping the hand-written thank-you card from the group of leaders whom I met during the leaders training course in 2019. One of them told me in person that the values and beliefs I articulated and demonstrated throughout the course had motivated her to further participate in the Guiding movement. In fact, her continuous participation has also become the fuel for me to move forwards in the wider Guiding context.

PART B: SUPPORTING INFORMATION

GUIDELINES ON CAMPAIGNING

The following guidelines aim to provide candidates and Member Organisations with clear parameters within which they can work to support a candidate’s nomination. It is an expectation that all parties will follow the guidelines to ensure a transparent, fair and ethical process in the lead up to the election.

Be aware that different cultures view campaigning in different ways. Candidates (and/or a Member Organisation on their behalf) may provide opportunities for Member Organisations to get to know them, including but not limited to: at online or face-to-face conferences and events prior to the World Conference, with a web page, digital flyer, short videos, blog, or using social media. Taglines to email messages are also an option. Promotion of a candidature shall at all times be conducted with dignity and moderation. Following the values and principles of Girl Guiding and Girl Scouting, we strongly discourage aggressive and/or negative campaigning including activity or behaviour that seeks to criticise or undermine a fellow candidate. Candidates (and/or a Member Organisation on their behalf) should maintain an atmosphere of friendly competition.

Candidates (and/or a Member Organisation on their behalf) may provide additional information to Member Organisations at the World Conference in the form of an electronic flyer (one page), bookmark or item of a similar nature.

If candidates have the opportunity to attend another event prior to the World Conference, they should be aware that while this is a great opportunity for Member Organisations to get to know them and see them in action, the event purpose should be the focus, rather than their candidacy. Candidates are encouraged to practise their Leadership Mindsets, letting their personality, participation, commitment and effectiveness at the event speak for them, rather than campaigning actively.

If a candidate holds an existing position/role within WAGGGS or their Member Organisation they are free to continue in this role and deliver their responsibilities during their period of candidacy.

Candidates (and/or a Member Organisation on their behalf) may not provide gifts, either at conference or at other events. This ensures that no one is either advantaged or disadvantaged by a financial position and minimises the risk or perception of gifts being seen as an inducement to act in a certain way or creating a sense of obligation. This definition of gifts includes gifts in kind such as the exchange/promise of services or favours.

These guidelines will be circulated to all candidates and all Member Organisations and will be available on the World Conference Campfire page.
ROLE AND RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE WORLD BOARD

Being a member of the World Board is a voluntary role, undertaken because you are committed to furthering the purposes of WAGGGS and have the skills, experience and personal qualities needed for the strategic management of this complex, global organisation.

WAGGGS is a registered charity and is regulated by the Charity Commission for England and Wales. The Charity Commission provides guidance on the legal duties and responsibilities of charity trustees, summarising these into six main areas:

1. Ensure your charity is carrying out its purposes for the public benefit
   - It’s about knowing:

     - what difference your charity is really making

     - familiar with your governing document
     - up to date with filing accounts, returns and any changes to your charity’s registration details

   - It’s not about being:
     - an expert - but you do need to take reasonable steps to find out

   - It’s about:
     - making balanced, informed decisions
     - recognising & dealing with conflicts of interest
     - being prepared to question and challenge
     - accepting majority decisions
   - It’s not about:
     - preserving the charity for its own sake
     - serving personal interests

4. Ensure your charity is accountable
   - It’s about:
     - meeting legal accounting and reporting requirements
     - being able to show that your charity complies with the law and is effective
     - being accountable to members and others with an interest in the charity
     - ensuring that staff and volunteers are accountable to the board

     - being prepared in case something goes wrong

The Chair and Vice-Chair(s) are elected by the World Board from amongst their members after the World Board election has taken place at World Conference. When thinking about potential nominees, it may be useful for Member Organisations to consider the additional responsibilities and skills, experience and qualities required for these roles:

Chair and Vice-Chair(s) of the World Board

The Treasurer is selected by the World Board. If there is a suitably qualified individual amongst the elected World Board members, the Treasurer may be appointed from amongst the Board. Alternatively, the World Board may appoint a Treasurer from outside the World Board. In this case, the Treasurer will attend World Board meetings but will not have voting rights. Further details about the role of Treasurer can be found at this link: WAGGGS Treasurer

Every effort is made through the nominations process to ensure that there is a cross-section of the desired skills and experience amongst World Board members. However, as all positions on the World Board are elected ultimately the collective skills, knowledge and experience of the World Board is not known until after the World Conference.

After the election the World Board carries out a skills audit to identify the strengths, skills and expertise within the Board and identify any areas that may need to be strengthened.

The World Board has recently completed their 2022 skills audit. Amongst the eleven continuing World Board members WAGGGS has a rich variety of skill, knowledge and experience to draw upon. However, the skills audit exercise has identified that, with six World Board members stepping down in July 2023, the World Board will have gaps in skill and experience in financial management, fund development and marketing and communications. The World Board would benefit from individuals able to strengthen oversight and provide strategic direction in these skill areas.

To support the strategic priorities of WAGGGS in the coming triennia, the World Board therefore strongly encourage nominations from individuals with a high level of governance proficiency or experience in one or more of the following areas:

- Financial management, accounting and/or risk management
- Fund development and donor relations
- Marketing and communications, including social media
